hey im a begginer in this world of hacking and cyber security , where should i begin .
it can be books toturials every thing.
and i need to know ccna for cyber security?
thank you!

I'm same situation probably. What are some books to read?
Comptia books/courses are good? Comptia Networks is good?
or a Linux administration course?

hey fellas,

its really not that hard to get started with that kind of stuff.
There are loads of free ebooks, guides and courses on here, just start looking around man.
i suggest you start where your interests lie, so dont bother programming if social engineering is more your thing.

once you have got the hang of something try to put it into practice by joining bughunting or creating projects.

YOU have to put effort in it to make it work, no one is going to hand you 10 simple steps to be an hacker. take some initiative.

You can start from operational security, that is important!

Then move on to coding or becoming a script kiddie, perform some wifi hacks, and other tons of ETHICAL things wink
