Maskin - April 11, 2019, 12:47 pm

The biggest money I've ever had was about $20k, which I used as down payment for an apartment.

?ystem - April 11, 2019, 1:09 pm

Most cash in my wallet was around $640 for rent and another matter. The most in my account was around $1600 after all of my bills were paid. Nothing too big or ludacris like some other people. I really try to keep at least three digits before the period in my account or else I have a slight anxiety attack. I hate being broke.

I really relate to the last part, when i don't have a decent amount of "savings" like, theres always something that has to be paid and thats what you save up for. For unexpected events.

BTC - April 11, 2019, 1:23 pm

The most amount of money I've ever had at once is probably when i bought my first house and was paying the down payment, ~$120k

Although the most expensive thing I've had in my possession was a friend who let me drive their Ferrari 458

Shit I could spend more than that when I was 14 bro, money's hard to earn but easy to spend at any age.

Pretty much. Respect for money is a trait many think they have until they actually get money.

Games, food, clothes, electronics, you name it. Parents were happy I was able to pay for my own shit tho
