Thread: World in 100 years, What do you expect? n3rox - April 12, 2019, 2:03 am

Hey,

What do you expect to happen in 100 years?

Think about today is 2119

Flying cars,bitcoin 500k, colonies on Mars, moon, aliens, eth 30k ,cure of all cancer, cure of death?

What are your opinions?

hopefully technology that can increase lifespans for currently living people. that way, i can get a chance to experience space travel. people think they're so lucky to be born during this time period. lol no, your lives suck and you should be sad because in years to come humanity will be self sustained by autonomous labor and have technology to reach planets.

I hope I'm alive to see that. 50 years is a long time but I'm probably still alive by that, would be really cool to see such amazing achievements.

if you were born in 2119 I'm pretty sure you would have thought the same thing because we can't stop progress!

In 50 years world will be very différents i think we can live some things that WE don't imagine !

Tomek Radomski - April 12, 2019, 8:14 am

I see wars, wars and only wars

Sadly this is what the humanity did for the past few thousand years, so I don't see how it will stop in the next 100

IniGo - April 12, 2019, 8:47 am

War, murder and treason against our own humanity. We are so lucky to live in a rather safe bubble up here in the western world, i'm not so sure that luck will last. Times changing as they always have, so i hope they soon change for the better for our race and planet but 'm doubtful

ET's will have made themselves publicly known, population will be decreased to about 10-12 million, there will be no jobs, no flourishing economy, anti-gravity propelling systems will be the norm for the existing population.

Capn_N3m0 - April 12, 2019, 9:36 am

I think well inside 100 years, in the Western World, we're going to come face-to-face with the machine of political Islam, and the effects of the political power of females, and we're going to have some very ugly wars and conflict... How the world looks largely depends upon the outcome of those conflicts.

Crypt - April 12, 2019, 9:38 am

The medical field keeps advancing so it's possible I could be alive 100 years from now.

I definitely don't see flying cars in 100 years for the same reason we aren't working on creating them now, they just aren't practical. I definitely need a base on the Moon and a colony on Mars. I see virtual reality being a very big thing and I think we will definitely find some form of life in space by then. Artificial intelligence will be a big part of our daily operations as well, in the sense that robots will be doing the jobs humans don't want to do or simply could do way better.

Or WW3 happens and we all die before any of this can happen...

Moskov - April 12, 2019, 9:38 am

I don't have any expectations as I won't be alive to witness what will happen :)

The only people left will be the most intelligent of the human species along with the most powerful bloodlines. The jobs will most likely consist of programming, philosophy, engineering, scientists, etc. Soon there will be an awakening + WW3. World War 3 will actually be more like a gigantic civil war against the entire world where nobody knows who to trust and who to count as an enemy. There will be mass confusion, mass killings, mass suicide, bombings, etc. It'll be chaos and I'd say at least 80% of the population would die off within the first 6 months. Programs in the United States right now today are aimed at using AI and other advanced technologies to read each and every single persons mind and determine their intentions before they themselves are even aware of their own future intentions. DARPA and other agencies are involved in this. Most likely Google and companies like Instagram/Facebook are providing these AI's with the data necessary to function.

The CIA also has a lot of secret programs directed at mind controlling you through what you watch on YouTube, TV, etc.. most recently in history they have been using comedy and podcasts to mind control and sway opinions without you people even knowing it.

Robot sex partners instead of Husband or Wife. That's eminent!

XanaxHeister - April 14, 2019, 1:58 pm

I expect a great war to start on October the 23th 2077 precisely, where nuclear bombs will destroy a majority of the world's population. Only a few people will survive, those that hid in some great underground vaults, ready to make surface after a few years the time for the radiation to decrease. Those who didn't make in the these vaults are either dead or suffered heavy radiations and transformed into some kind of brainless undeads or brutal mutants. This will mark a new chapter to the humanity, slowly trying to recover after this great catastrophe. People will start regrouping into tribes, clans, either to facilitate survival against mutated creatures or to rule the world.

Deany - April 14, 2019, 2:46 pm

Danktober - April 14, 2019, 2:51 pm

It's hard to say, but AI is a scary thought.

Bluffer - April 14, 2019, 2:59 pm

I think AI will be used in literally everything in 100 years.

World is going to change a lot but scientists have alarmed that earth doesn't have long unless climate change is taken seriously immediately and that's just not happening so humanity on earth is doomed. Could be 100 years or maybe less until this planet is destroyed.

Maybe humanity will take over Mars by then... who knows.

int - April 14, 2019, 3:38 pm

I'm hoping for VR to be popular, space travel, and flying cars and shit.

But so far we have just created 200 genders, so I don't think we will make it lucky. - April 14, 2019, 6:28 pm

Some major war will probably happen between then, mars progress will probably be more than it is now but I highly doubt a biosphere-type-thing will be set up by then, if ever. I don't see flying cars being a thing, but autonomous cars will probably be perfected and maybe even some autonomous only highways like light rail type shit. Who knows.

China will still sell and mine coal en masse.

America will still use 2/3rds of the world's oil to run their v8 trucks.

Britain will still shit on its people's votes.

Europe will still be Hitler's dream.

When I saw your thread title I remembered those youtube comments:

2019: some dumb ass video.

So I expect people to get dumber and less social.

?ystem - April 19, 2019, 9:22 am

Hmm. That's a common question and there's many different outcomes. We would certainly be a much more technologically advanced society. Hopefully by then we would of set aside petty differences, stopped burning fossil fuels and at least put a step towards voyaging the stars. Il highly doubt any cryptocurrency would still exist, let alone be that ridiculously priced. I'm not going to repeat how I and most of the people feel about it.

But it's either we got our shit together or else the world would probably be in chaos. Major weather catastrophes, famine and war.

Maybe we'll have some more major science discoveries. Who knows.
