

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Harassed by LAPD Officer

Mr.Peanut II - April 15, 2019, 7:12 pm

2 nights ago I was pulled over around 11pm after seeing a movie with my girlfriend. The cop walked up too me and asked for my ID, which then I proceed to ask why I got pulled over. He then proceeds to say the most stupid comment, "I don't need to tell you, GIVE ME YOUR ID SIR." I then proceed to tell him that he can't just pull me over if he has no probable cause. The officer then proceeds to ask my gf for her ID and at that point I told her not to hand her ID over even though she was about too.

This cop then tells me "don't be a smart ass sir, listen to your girlfriend and let me see your id." I refused for a good 35 minutes and I guess he had a call up for another case, and before he left he said, "next time I won't be so nice sir." I asked him for name and he walked away and said its on my badge.... I was very pissed!

I filled a complaint form and called my attorney the next day because I found him threatening.

I thought LAPD and cops were suppose to protect and serve. ? ?

Astrogen - April 15, 2019, 7:16 pm

I don't know much about the rules in your country since I'm not from there but if he only asked for your ID you could have shown it to him. It's okay I think for you to show the ID but if he asks for it (like get it from you) it's not okay for me, but if he only wants to see my ID, I'll ask for his badge and let him see my ID.

Mr.Peanut II - April 15, 2019, 7:18 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 07:16 PM)Astrogen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I don't know much about the rules in your country since I'm not from there but if he only asked for your ID you could have shown it to him. It's okay I think for you to show the ID but if he asks for it (like get it from you) it's not okay for me, but if he only wants to see my ID, I'll ask for his badge and let him see my ID.

He just had no reason to want to see my ID and it was dumb of me not to ask for his badge number and name at the start.

Astrogen - April 15, 2019, 7:24 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 07:18 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) He just had no reason to want to see my ID and it was dumb of me not to ask for his badge number and name at the start.

Yeah, it was stupid for him to not give you the reason why he asked for your ID. He could have just politely said, "Hello sir, I'm xxx an LAPD officer and I will have to ask for your ID because xxx, thank you.

Mr.Peanut II - April 15, 2019, 7:32 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 07:30 PM)On My Own Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) this is the right thing to do, good job. don't feel threatened. it sounds to me the cop really got to you.

this here is a fear/scare tactic, DON'T EVER FOLD. once they scare you, they win. it's a psychological thing, trust me. cops are really pussy and insecure. they are trained to be 'stoic' and act hard while they ride around scared 24/7 that someone is going to pop them when they commit a traffic stop. have you ever heard in your town of 'bars for pigs'? they all go to 1 certain spot because they know they are not SAFE in a regular bar.

ALWAYS be a smart ass. you have rights.

Good to know that I wasn't the only one who thought the police officer was out of line!

(Apr 15, 2019 07:24 PM)Astrogen Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah, it was stupid for him to not give you the reason why he asked for your ID. He could have just politely said, "Hello sir, I'm xxx an LAPD officer and I will have to ask for your ID because xxx, thank you.

See I would've given him my ID if he had a probable cause, but I had a hunch he was just bullying me and had no reason what so ever.

Cheese - April 15, 2019, 7:35 pm

Wow that's messed up, I've never had situation like this. He sounded like he was just looking for something to get you on.

Mr.Peanut II - April 15, 2019, 7:39 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 07:35 PM)Cheese Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Wow that's messed up, I've never had situation like this. He sounded like he was just looking for something to get you on.

Same here and I've only been pulled over twice in my 4 years of driving.

Oval - April 15, 2019, 7:47 pm dude you should have told that honky that u hated crackas like him this ones for trayvon baby!

Iust - April 15, 2019, 7:48 pm

As a brown person, fuck all of that shit. You best believe I'm handing over some ID if he asks for it. Last thing I need is 14 warning shots to the back.

Mr.Peanut II - April 15, 2019, 7:50 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 07:47 PM)Oval Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) dude you should have told that honky that u hated crackas like him this ones for trayvon baby!

I pretty sure he would've pulled me out for disorderly conduct :(or called for back up (Apr 15, 2019 07:48 PM)Iust Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) As a brown person, fuck all of that shit. You best believe I'm handing over some ID if he asks for it. Last thing I need is 14 warning shots to the back.

I'm on the tanner side being half asian, half white, but haha, I would've handed it over if he was polite and had a reason to pull me over.

THE NORTH FACE - April 15, 2019, 7:57 pm

Why not just give him your ID? Its a standard procedure (USA)

I reread your post 3 times and to me you are 110% the problem in this situation. If you had just handed over your license you would have been on your way within 10 minutes. Instead you decided to throw your weight around (probably trying to impress your gf) and waste everyone's time.

Crypt - April 15, 2019, 8:22 pm

There are definitely a lot of asshole cops but every time I've come across police they always look at me, smile and ask me how I'm doing. I haven't had a bad experience yet.

It's all about how you go about it too, people (including cops) will get aggressive if they feel like you're starting to get aggressive or if you make someone uncomfortable. Best bet, stay calm, get his name and badge number and you will have your day in court to explain yourself.

Mr.Peanut II - April 15, 2019, 8:24 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 07:57 PM)THE NORTH FACE Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why not just give him your ID? Its a standard procedure (USA)

I reread your post 3 times and to me you are 110% the problem in this situation. If you had just handed over your license you would have been on your way within 10 minutes. Instead you decided to throw your weight around (probably trying to impress your gf) and waste everyone's time.

I'm definitely not trying to impress my girlfriend, the main reason I didn't is because they had no reason. I'm not just going to be a blind sheep and listen to whatever someone with a badge and gun says...

(Apr 15, 2019 08:22 PM)Crypt Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) There are definitely a lot of asshole cops but every time I've come across police they always look at me, smile and ask me how I'm doing. I haven't had a bad experience yet.

It's all about how you go about it too, people (including cops) will get aggressive if they feel like you're starting to get aggressive or if you make someone uncomfortable. Best bet, stay calm, get his name and badge number and you will have your day in court to explain yourself.

I think I was pretty calm.. I greeted him and asked why I was pulled over, and luckily he didn't give me a ticket... I mean I don't know what ticket he could've possibly given me anyways.

Crypt - April 15, 2019, 8:30 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 08:24 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#)

I think I was pretty calm.. I greeted him and asked why I was pulled over, and luckily he didn't give me a ticket... I mean I don't know what ticket he could've possibly given me anyways.

You should've recorded it. Not calling you a liar but most people (the courts) won't believe this happened without some evidence. They are supposed to tell you why they stopped you and it doesn't make sense he just left the scene when you wouldn't give your info.

team3d - April 15, 2019, 8:36 pm

I went on Google and searched "do you have to identify yourself to a police officer in California"?

This was the result:

Police cannot force you to show ID without just cause, so they cannot arrest you for simply refusing to identify yourself. California does not have what is called a "Stop and Identify" or "Papers Please" statute that requires you to produce identification to the police when asked. Just because police ask to see your ID doesn't mean you have to show it.

Now although you did not have to show your ID. I agree with "THE NORTH FACE" when they said "If you had just handed over your license you would have been on your way within 10 minutes."

SIM-925118 - April 15, 2019, 8:37 pm

Some departments are trained to ask ID first before saying anything else.

Sorry, but you were the asshole.

RainbowHentAi - April 15, 2019, 8:37 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 07:12 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) 2 nights ago I was pulled over around 11pm after seeing a movie with my girlfriend. The cop walked up to me and asked for my ID, which then I proceed to ask why I got pulled over. He then proceeds to say the most stupid comment, "I don't need to tell you, GIVE ME YOUR ID SIR." I then proceed to tell him that he can't just pull me over if he has no probable cause. The officer then proceeds to ask my gf for her ID and at that point I told her not to hand her ID over even though she was about too.

This cop then tells me "don't be a smart ass sir, listen to your girlfriend and let me see your id." I refused for a good 35 minutes and I guess he had a call up for another case, and before he left he said, "next time I won't be so nice sir." I asked him for name and he walked away and said its on my badge.... I was very pissed!

I filled a complaint form and called my attorney the next day because I found him threatening.

I thought LAPD and cops were suppose to protect and serve. ? ?

You being a dick to the cop is just going to make it worse. Just give them your ID and move along, it will make your life and the cops life a whole lot easier.

Crypt - April 15, 2019, 8:48 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 08:36 PM)team3d Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I went on Google and searched "do you have to identify yourself to a police officer in California"?

This was the result:

Police cannot force you to show ID without just cause, so they cannot arrest you for simply refusing to identify yourself. California does not have what is called a "Stop and Identify" or "Papers Please" statute that requires you to produce identification to the police when asked. Just because police ask to see your ID doesn't mean you have to show it.

Now although you did not have to show your ID. I agree with "THE NORTH FACE" when they said "If you had just handed over your license you would have been on your way within 10 minutes." "Stop and Identify" or "Papers Please" Is assuming you're just walking down the street and a cop randomly asks you for ID, however, if you actually broke a law (including traffic laws) the police have every right to ask you for ID and if you refuse you can be taken to jail.

The best thing to do is contact a lawyer in whatever state you're in and ask them, they know the law better than Google.

Mr.Peanut II - April 15, 2019, 8:54 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 08:30 PM)Crypt Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You should've recorded it. Not calling you a liar but most people (the courts) won't believe this happened without some evidence. They are supposed to tell you why they stopped you and it doesn't make sense he just left the scene when you wouldn't give your info.

If anything he has a body cam on him...hopefully...

Crypt - April 15, 2019, 8:56 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 08:54 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If anything he has a body cam on him...hopefully...

They are always supposed to.

Mr.Peanut II - April 15, 2019, 8:56 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 08:36 PM)team3d Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I went on Google and searched "do you have to identify yourself to a police officer in California"?

This was the result:

Police cannot force you to show ID without just cause, so they cannot arrest you for simply refusing to identify yourself. California does not have what is called a "Stop and Identify" or "Papers Please" statute that requires you to produce identification to the police when asked. Just because police ask to see your ID doesn't mean you have to show it.

Now although you did not have to show your ID. I agree with "THE NORTH FACE" when they said "If you had just handed over your license you would have been on your way within 10 minutes."

I'm trying to make a statement that cops can't just bully a civilian even though it would've took 10 minutes for him to check my ID.

(Apr 15, 2019 08:56 PM)Crypt Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) They are always supposed to. Yea body cam is required but in some cases the "audio" is turned off, or there are "technical" issues

(Apr 15, 2019 08:37 PM)Peloton Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Some departments are trained to ask ID first before saying anything else.

Sorry, but you were the asshole.
He asked for my ID, I ask why...

SIM-925118 - April 15, 2019, 9:23 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 08:56 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) He asked for my ID, I ask why...

Yea, and they don't have to inform you of that reason until they receive your ID. If you don't have warrants, and a valid license why would you refuse to show identification? Honesty goes a long way with cops, bullshit won't always slide.

This is pure logic, if you had a cop who was patient, but also firm. You probably would be in jail right now if you continued to refuse identification.

NCAA - April 15, 2019, 9:27 pm

cause your brown driving in a white neighborhood

shelled - April 15, 2019, 9:32 pm

Can you make a tutorial on how to catch a girlfriend?

team3d - April 15, 2019, 9:34 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 08:48 PM)Crypt Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) "Stop and Identify" or "Papers Please" Is assuming you're just walking down the street and a cop randomly asks you for ID, however, if you actually broke a law (including traffic laws) the police have every right to ask you for ID and if you refuse you can be taken to jail.

The best thing to do is contact a lawyer in whatever state you're in and ask them, they know the law better than Google.

For Mr.Peanut II situation, it is presumed that he did not break any laws as the officer is supposed to notify you as to why he has pulled you over. Maybe if the police officer had told him why he had been stopped, he would have been more willing to surrender his ID to the police officer?
Regardless, if I was randomly stopped by a police officer in my region, I'd give the police officer my ID and while I am handing it over I would politely ask him/her the reason why I was pulled over.

(Apr 15, 2019 08:56 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm trying to make a statement that cops can't just bully a civilian even though it would've took 10 minutes for him to check my ID.

I honestly think it is not worth it though, considering the power that a police officer has. If they want they can give you a really hard time.

NCAA - April 15, 2019, 9:38 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 08:56 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) He asked for my ID, I ask why...

cause thats his JOB you clown you dont know what he was after so dont be jackass. could of been a car in the area that robbed a store and your car matched the description. people like you are the exact reason there is tension between cops and regular folks in america.

Crypt - April 15, 2019, 9:56 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 09:34 PM)team3d Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) For Mr.Peanut II situation, it is presumed that he did not break any laws as the officer is supposed to notify you as to why he has pulled you over. Maybe if the police officer had told him why he had been stopped, he would have been more willing to surrender his ID to the police officer? Regardless, if I was randomly stopped by a police officer in my region, I'd give the police officer my ID and while I am handing it over I would politely ask him/her the reason why I was pulled over.

This is what I would do too. I wasn't there so I don't know the tone of voice and the posture the OP had, or perhaps this cop just had a chip on his shoulder.

team3d - April 15, 2019, 10:11 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 08:56 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm trying to make a statement that cops can't just bully a civilian even though it would've took 10 minutes for him to check my ID.

Yea body cam is required but in some cases the "audio" is turned off, or there are "technical" issues

He asked for my ID, I ask why...

(Apr 15, 2019 09:56 PM)Crypt Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This is what I would do too. I wasn't there so I don't know the tone of voice and the posture the OP had, or perhaps this cop just had a chip on his shoulder.

Yes, you are right. First impression is very important. Maybe the cop and OP had a bad first impression? We don't know.

Bill Gates - April 15, 2019, 10:50 pm

Just be cool give him what he wants and let him be on his way, he doesn't want to be stuck by the side of the road having to argue with some pretentious kid that thinks he knows the law and wants to make a stand.....I'd be more concerned if the police weren't doing their job and stopping peoples on the road. You were the problem here by making his job harder than it has to be, no wonder he was a dick to you. All he was asking for is ID, not like you were doing handbrake turns in the Walmart carpark while screaming profanities out the window, I don't see why you had to make a molehill into a mountain.

Let him do his job, comply, then complain if you have video later.

Mr.Peanut II - April 15, 2019, 10:55 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 10:11 PM)team3d Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes, you are right. First impression is very important. Maybe the cop and OP had a bad first impression? We don't know.

dialogue literally went:

me : Hi officer

officer : licenses and registration me : can i ask why you are pulling me over officer: I don't need to tell you, ID please

And yes cops HAVE to have a reasonable cause to ID you unless its a DUI checkpoint...

(Apr 15, 2019 10:50 PM)Bill Gates Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Just be cool give him what he wants and let him be on his way, he doesn't want to be stuck by the side of the road having to argue with some pretentious kid that thinks he knows the law and wants to make a stand.....I'd be more concerned if the police weren't doing their job and stopping peoples on the road. You were the problem here by making his job harder than it has to be, no wonder he was a dick to you. All he was asking for is ID, not like you were doing handbrake turns in the Walmart carpark while screaming profanities out the window, I don't see why you had to make a molehill into a mountain.

Let him do his job, comply, then complain if you have video later.
kind of ignorant of you to say some "some kid who thinks he knows the law," I thought it was just common knowledge but oh well ?

Punisher - April 16, 2019, 1:29 am

(Apr 15, 2019 07:57 PM)THE NORTH FACE Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why not just give him your ID? Its a standard procedure (USA)

I reread your post 3 times and to me you are 110% the problem in this situation. If you had just handed over your license you would have been on your way within 10 minutes. Instead you decided to throw your weight around (probably trying to impress your gf) and waste everyone's time.

He doesn't have to present an ID, especially because the officer refused to explain why the officer was wasting his time by pulling him over without explanation.

(Apr 15, 2019 08:37 PM)Peloton Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Some departments are trained to ask ID first before saying anything else.

Sorry, but you were the asshole.

So because a cop is trained to ask for an ID, citizens should just blindly obey them, even when not legally required?

Officers are also trained to give a reason for a traffic stop - this cop was poorly trained and a corrupt asshole.

(Apr 15, 2019 08:37 PM)Rainbow Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You being a dick to the cop is just going to make it worse. Just give them your ID and move along, it will make your life and the cops life a whole lot easier.

The cop is a public servant. That's their job. The officer was wasting taxpayer money pulling people over without reasonable cause and refused to give this guy a reason for the stop, then wasted 35 minutes - time which could have been spent stopping an actual criminal. He wasn't being a dick, he simply asked why he was being pulled over.

(Apr 15, 2019 08:48 PM)Crypt Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) "Stop and Identify" or "Papers Please" Is assuming you're just walking down the street and a cop randomly asks you for ID, however, if you actually broke a law (including traffic laws) the police have every right to ask you for ID and if you refuse you can be taken to jail.

The best thing to do is contact a lawyer in whatever state you're in and ask them, they know the law better than Google.

No it doesn't - whether you're in a vehicle or on foot, it's all the same if you haven't violated any law and the officer refuses to explain why you are required to identify yourself.

(Apr 15, 2019 09:23 PM)Peloton Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yea, and they don't have to inform you of that reason until they receive your ID. If you don't have warrants, and a valid license why would you refuse to show identification? Honesty goes a long way with cops, bullshit won't always slide.

This is pure logic, if you had a cop who was patient, but also firm. You probably would be in jail right now if you continued to refuse identification.

Not true, you don't have to present identification unless they have reasonable suspicion of a crime.

Where the fuck do you think they take the ID when they go back to their car? They look you up in a system, they can see prior traffic violations, and even have access to your name, date of birth, and address. Imagine the dude looks you up on Facebook, or sits outside on your street waiting for you to leave so he can follow you or harass you further in the future. Just because some asshole cop DEMANDS to see your license, you don't have to comply.

(Apr 15, 2019 09:38 PM)NCAA Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) cause thats his JOB you clown you dont know what he was after so dont be jackass. could of been a car in the area that robbed a store and your car matched the description. people like you are the exact reason there is tension between cops and regular folks in america.

His job also requires him to give a reason for the traffic stop. All he had to do was answer his question and OP probably would have handed it over if it was a good reason. Bad cops are the reason there's tension, and this guy was a bad cop - wasting time, resources, and threatening citizens.

(Apr 15, 2019 10:50 PM)Bill Gates Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Just be cool give him what he wants and let him be on his way, he doesn't want to be stuck by the side of the road having to argue with some pretentious kid that thinks he knows the law and wants to make a stand.....I'd be more concerned if the police weren't doing their job and stopping peoples on the road. You were the problem here by making his job harder than it has to be, no wonder he was a dick to you. All he was asking for is ID, not like you were doing handbrake turns in the Walmart carpark while screaming profanities out the window, I don't see why you had to make a molehill into a mountain.

Let him do his job, comply, then complain if you have video later.

Obey. Comply. Baaaah sheep sounds.

You sound like a fucking beta little bitch.

Never comply with an officer if you don't have to, they're trained to dig for as much information as possible so they can fuck you over.

Never obey an unreasonable command, especially if you haven't even committed a crime or have been informed of the reason for the stop.

Never feel like you're wasting the officers time - they stopped you for no reason, not the other way around.

Always ask for name and badge number of an officer when they get aggressive, and document then report it.

Suspect. - April 16, 2019, 3:48 am

Well not sure why you're so surprised it always seemed to me that cops usually think they are above everyone else i've Had my run ins with the police and most of the officers are complete pieces of shit

They think they can do anything they don't need a probable cause and then when you complain they brush it under the rug cuz it's all a corrupt system

Can't beat a corrupt system

Elara - April 16, 2019, 4:31 am

I can't wait to deal with these ignorant L.A. police officers everyone talks about when I move out there in September, lmao!

SIM-3970461 - April 16, 2019, 4:35 am

LAPD and NYPD do this same shit. I was pulled over literally right after I left a party. Guess they thought I was drunk? Didn't give me a reason why they pulled me over for 0 reason. I wasted their time for 20 minutes and they left. ezClap

Elara - April 16, 2019, 4:35 am

(Apr 16, 2019 04:35 AM)Jinx Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) LAPD and NYPD do this same shit. I was pulled over literally right after I left a party. Guess they thought I was drunk? Didn't give me a reason why they pulled me over for 0 reason. I wasted their time for 20 minutes and they left. ezClap was this NYPD or LAPD?

SIM-3970461 - April 16, 2019, 4:37 am

(Apr 16, 2019 04:35 AM)Elara Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) was this NYPD or LAPD?
NYPD

They came before because of a noise complaint and I guess they stayed. Pretty sure they thought they could give out shit ton of tickets. lol

Oran2009 - April 16, 2019, 5:01 am

Hey... that's American police for you.

gore - April 16, 2019, 7:26 am

He was bored. LAPD sucks ass, as do most of the policing agencies in SoCal. Mainly because they have no community engagement and like to bully.

You got off lucky, but for future reference in case it happens again, state that you don't agree but just give him your ID. Not worth the struggle that can ensue if you run into an even bigger asshole than him. Just get his P# and name and make a report regardless. You'd be surprised what IAB actually looks at.

Mr.Peanut II - April 16, 2019, 7:50 am

(Apr 16, 2019 01:29 AM)Punisher Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) He doesn't have to present an ID, especially because the officer refused to explain why the officer was wasting his time by pulling him over without explanation.

So because a cop is trained to ask for an ID, citizens should just blindly obey them, even when not legally required?

Officers are also trained to give a reason for a traffic stop - this cop was poorly trained and a corrupt asshole.

The cop is a public servant. That's their job. The officer was wasting taxpayer money pulling people over without reasonable cause and refused to give this guy a reason for the stop, then wasted 35 minutes - time which could have been spent stopping an actual criminal. He wasn't being a dick, he simply asked why he was being pulled over.

No it doesn't - whether you're in a vehicle or on foot, it's all the same if you haven't violated any law and the officer refuses to explain why you are required to identify yourself.

Not true, you don't have to present identification unless they have reasonable suspicion of a crime. Where the fuck do you think they take the ID when they go back to their car? They look you up in a system, they can see prior traffic violations, and even have access to your name, date of birth, and address. Imagine the dude looks you up on Facebook, or sits outside on your street waiting for you to leave so he can follow you or harass you further in the future. Just because some asshole cop DEMANDS to see your license, you don't have to comply.

His job also requires him to give a reason for the traffic stop. All he had to do was answer his question and OP probably would have handed it over if it was a good reason. Bad cops are the reason there's tension, and this guy was a bad cop - wasting time, resources, and threatening citizens.

Obey. Comply. Baaaah sheep sounds.
You sound like a fucking beta little bitch.

Never comply with an officer if you don't have to, they're trained to dig for as much information as possible so they can fuck you over.

Never obey an unreasonable command, especially if you haven't even committed a crime or have been informed of the reason for the stop.

Never feel like you're wasting the officers time - they stopped you for no reason, not the other way around.

Always ask for name and badge number of an officer when they get aggressive, and document then report it.

good to know I'm not the only one who thinks like this ;)

Bill Gates - April 16, 2019, 10:04 am

(Apr 16, 2019 01:29 AM)Punisher Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) He doesn't have to present an ID, especially because the officer refused to explain why the officer was wasting his time by pulling him over without explanation.

So because a cop is trained to ask for an ID, citizens should just blindly obey them, even when not legally required?

Officers are also trained to give a reason for a traffic stop - this cop was poorly trained and a corrupt asshole.

The cop is a public servant. That's their job. The officer was wasting taxpayer money pulling people over without reasonable cause and refused to give this guy a reason for the stop, then wasted 35 minutes - time which could have been spent stopping an actual criminal. He wasn't being a dick, he simply asked why he was being pulled over.

No it doesn't - whether you're in a vehicle or on foot, it's all the same if you haven't violated any law and the officer refuses to explain why you are required to identify yourself.

Not true, you don't have to present identification unless they have reasonable suspicion of a crime. Where the fuck do you think they take the ID when they go back to their car? They look you up in a system, they can see prior traffic violations, and even have access to your name, date of birth, and address. Imagine the dude looks you up on Facebook, or sits outside on your street waiting for you to leave so he can follow you or harass you further in the future. Just because some asshole cop DEMANDS to see your license, you don't have to comply.

His job also requires him to give a reason for the traffic stop. All he had to do was answer his question and OP probably would have handed it over if it was a good reason. Bad cops are the reason there's tension, and this guy was a bad cop - wasting time, resources, and threatening citizens.

Obey. Comply. Baaaah sheep sounds.
You sound like a fucking beta little bitch.

Never comply with an officer if you don't have to, they're trained to dig for as much information as possible so they can fuck you over.

Never obey an unreasonable command, especially if you haven't even committed a crime or have been informed of the reason for the stop.

Never feel like you're wasting the officers time - they stopped you for no reason, not the other way around.

Always ask for name and badge number of an officer when they get aggressive, and document then report it.

You sound like a little hood rat gimp tbh.....FIGHT THE AUTHORITAAAAAH.....fucking child. Hopefully, you carry that attitude to the wrong cop.

Dirty little millennials

Lot66 - April 16, 2019, 11:59 am

What a POS, in Canada they're not allowed to pull you over without probable cause (unless someone called it in), and even then, in Canada the cops are even worse. (US vs CA) is pretty much the same thing except it's not just the blacks, its also the natives. (and every other brown race)

I'm sorry this happened to you.

Slow Motion - April 16, 2019, 12:02 pm

[Video: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YRgbmbcMmLA>]

How to deal with them like a baws :3

Mr.Peanut II - April 16, 2019, 1:56 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 10:04 AM)Bill Gates Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You sound like a little hood rat gimp tbh.....FIGHT THE AUTHORITAAAAAH.....fucking child. Hopefully, you carry that attitude to the wrong cop.

Dirty little millennials

You might be a racist...

int - April 16, 2019, 2:01 pm

imma keep it real with you g, after reading your thread history its a bit obvious that your viewpoint is a bit flawed and missing some details

Bossk - April 16, 2019, 2:07 pm

Can't respect behavior like that OP, you're no hero.

You can probably see the situation from his perspective, because statistically, those who hide have a reason to hide. You were hiding your identity for no reason so you begin to wonder why..? Don't act too much out of principles.

BTC - April 16, 2019, 2:14 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 02:07 PM)Bossk Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Can't respect behavior like that OP, you're no hero.

You can probably see the situation from his perspective, because statistically, those who hide have a reason to hide. You were hiding your identity for no reason so you begin to wonder why..? Don't act too much out of principles.

I have to agree here.

This pretty much sums up my response to this thread.

If you live in a city such as LA where the police are known for being more strict due to high violent crime rates. This is based on statistics, with that in mind it is common sense to know if one of their police officers stops you or is face to face with you, then you might have to take extra precaution or walk on egg shells so to speak. Doing things to make yourself seem any bit suspicious to the officer is just asking for problems to come

Lindros - April 16, 2019, 2:51 pm

Yeah cops in larger cities seem to be getting worse. Especially in places like Chicago, LA, Detroit.

Mr.Peanut II - April 16, 2019, 4:01 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 02:07 PM)Bossk Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Can't respect behavior like that OP, you're no hero.

You can probably see the situation from his perspective, because statistically, those who hide have a reason to hide. You were hiding your identity for no reason so you begin to wonder why..? Don't act too much out of principles.

Wonder if a cop decided to pull over anyone he sees just cause and asked for ID.... what is the purpose (Apr 16, 2019 02:01 PM)int Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) imma keep it real with you g, after reading your thread history its a bit obvious that your viewpoint is a bit flawed and missing some details how so?

Im High - April 16, 2019, 4:07 pm

Don't listen to any of these cucks telling you that you were an asshole to the cop.

Fuck them and fuck the cop.

If you were driving, you're required to show him your drivers license as proof that you're actually able to drive.

You are NOT required to answer any fucking questions or engage with the officer any further.

No one else in the car is required to hand over their ID besides the person driving.

Probable cause IS required in California and he did not have it.

You were 100% in the right here.

Just because some idiots give away their rights freely, doesn't mean you have to as well.

Good on you for standing your ground and fuck the police.

Mr.Peanut II - April 16, 2019, 4:11 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 04:07 PM)Im High Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Don't listen to any of these cucks telling you that you were an asshole to the cop.

Fuck them and fuck the cop.

If you were driving, you're required to show him your drivers license as proof that you're actually able to drive.

You are NOT required to answer any fucking questions or engage with the officer any further.

No one else in the car is required to hand over their ID besides the person driving.

Probable cause IS required in California and he did not have it.

You were 100% in the right here.

Just because some idiots give away their rights freely, doesn't mean you have to as well.

Good on you for standing your ground and fuck the police.

The thing is I don't even hate cops, this police officer was just rude...

Im High - April 16, 2019, 4:14 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 04:11 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The thing is I don't even hate cops, this police officer was just rude...

Exactly.

They are egotistical pricks that need to be checked.

What other "job" do you know where you can be rude as fuck and arbitrarily kill civilians while still maintaining said job? ?

Sorry this happened to you but a bit of advice, always record LAPD. You'll be glad you did.

Mr.Peanut II - April 16, 2019, 4:16 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 04:14 PM)Im High Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Exactly.

They are egotistical pricks that need to be checked.

What other "job" do you know where you can be rude as fuck and arbitrarily kill civilians while still maintaining said job? ?

Sorry this happened to you but a bit of advice, always record LAPD. You'll be glad you did.

I agree, I feel like police officers need more book studying to do before they're allowed to obtain a gun and roam the streets as a police officer!

Bossk - April 16, 2019, 4:31 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 04:01 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Wonder if a cop decided to pull over anyone he sees just cause and asked for ID.... what is the purpose how so?

What do you think is the purpose?

I have no idea but there's some reason. Could be randomized, your vehicle could match someone's who they are looking for etc.. The officer is not benefited in any way by pulling you over, he's just taking a risk at something.

Mr.Peanut II - April 16, 2019, 4:38 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 04:31 PM)Bossk Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) What do you think is the purpose?

I have no idea but there's some reason. Could be randomized, your vehicle could match someone's who they are looking for etc.. The officer is not benefited in any way by pulling you over, he's just taking a risk at something.

I understand where you're coming from but you have to understand that we have rights not to unless theres a reason, and if he would've said " oh we had a report on a black jeep that was stolen in your area " I would've been more compliant with him and probably given him my id even though I wouldn't need to because a "hunch" isn't enough cause for identification. But like I said I respect where you're coming from.

Bossk - April 16, 2019, 4:40 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 04:07 PM)Im High Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Don't listen to any of these cucks telling you that you were an asshole to the cop.

Fuck them and fuck the cop.

If you were driving, you're required to show him your drivers license as proof that you're actually able to drive.

You are NOT required to answer any fucking questions or engage with the officer any further.

No one else in the car is required to hand over their ID besides the person driving.

Probable cause IS required in California and he did not have it.

You were 100% in the right here.

Just because some idiots give away their rights freely, doesn't mean you have to as well.

Good on you for standing your ground and fuck the police.

Where does this hatred towards police come from? Stop being a "i know my rights"-sovereign cuck. Legal rights are important, rule of law is essential of democracy but, you're just trying to exploit them and make everyone's day miserable. Legal rights shouldn't be used for fun, they are in place to protect those who need them. What are you trying to achieve by refusing to give an officer your ID? It's childish.

Im High - April 16, 2019, 4:52 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 04:40 PM)Bossk Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Where does this hatred towards police come from? Stop being a "i know my rights"-sovereign cuck. Legal rights are important, rule of law is essential of democracy but, you're just trying to exploit them and make everyone's day miserable. Legal rights shouldn't be used for fun, they are in place to protect those who need them. What are you trying to achieve by refusing to give an officer your ID? It's childish.

You're an actual idiot and you know nothing.

How far are you able to take that cop cock?

Rights are the only things that keep us from tyranny and you're here like LOL stop trying to exploit your rights huehuehue.

Rights are there so you do NOT get exploited by cops who prey on people ever day.

Rights only protect those who need them? ARE YOU FUCKING RETARDED? Right are for everyone.

You're clearly a child with no idea how the real world works and you offer no real input or anything of value to this discussion besides your "feelings".

THC - April 16, 2019, 5:18 pm

(Apr 15, 2019 07:12 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) 2 nights ago I was pulled over around 11pm after seeing a movie with my girlfriend. The cop walked up to me and asked for my ID, which then I proceed to ask why I got pulled over. He then proceeds to say the most stupid comment, "I don't need to tell you, GIVE ME YOUR ID SIR."Correct, he doesn't need to. While most police officers do tell you why they're pulling you over if it's for a minor traffic infraction, they can choose not to tell you if they feel suspicious about the situation at hand, or want to investigate further. You indirectly refused to give him your ID, which is refusing a lawful order.

(Apr 15, 2019 07:12 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I then proceed to tell him that he can't just pull me over if he has no probable cause.Yes, police can by all means do this. Reasonable suspicion is all that is required for a police officer to be able to legally stop you. You can think of it as lesser than probable cause, but I'd recommend looking into both of them as they are quite different. One of the cases that brought this about was Terry vs Ohio in the 60s.

(Apr 15, 2019 07:12 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The officer then proceeds to ask my gf for her ID This is perfectly fine and SOP essentially everywhere. Every time I've been pulled over with a passenger they've been ID'd. It's important for the officer to know who's in the car, and often times dictates to an extent how the traffic stop will be carried out. Gotta consider that people on parole and convicted felons have different rights.

(Apr 15, 2019 07:12 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) And at that point I told her not to hand her ID over even though she was about too.Why? You're probably raising red flags in this cop's head, or you've just convinced him that you're an asshole for making his job hard. Again this is refusing a lawful order, and refusing to ID to a LEO, which affixes charges in California.

(Apr 15, 2019 07:12 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This cop then tells me "don't be a smart ass sir, listen to your girlfriend and let me see your id."Not a bad idea ya know.

(Apr 15, 2019 07:12 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I refused for a good 35 minutesWhy?!? Just to make his night hard? I mean I don't get it, for all you know your tail light is out, the cop wanted to ID you and your girl, run NICS and probably make sure the person driving the car matches the person who owns the car, then give you a fixit ticket and have you on your way. For all you know, your car could have matched the description of a car involved in a crime and the guy would have just ID'd and ran you, told you why you were stopped and had you on your way.

(Apr 15, 2019 07:12 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) and I guess he had a call up for another case, and before he left he said, "next time I won't be so nice sir." I asked him for name and he walked away and said it's on my badge.... I was very pissed!You're lucky he was so nice. Someone got pulled over in front of my workplace, refused to ID, then was removed from her car via broken out window.

(Apr 15, 2019 07:12 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I filled a complaint form and called my attorney the next day because I found him threatening.I'd be interesting to see where this goes, post updates please.

(Apr 15, 2019 07:12 PM)Mr.Peanut II Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I thought LAPD and cops were suppose to protect and serve. ? ? ???

Mr.Peanut II - April 16, 2019, 5:19 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 04:52 PM)Im High Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You're an actual idiot and you know nothing.

How far are you able to take that cop cock?

Rights are the only things that keep us from tyranny and you're here like LOL stop trying to exploit your rights huehuehue.

Rights are there so you do NOT get exploited by cops who prey on people ever day.

Rights only protect those who need them? ARE YOU FUCKING RETARDED? Right are for everyone.

You're clearly a child with no idea how the real world works and you offer no real input or anything of value to this discussion besides your "feelings".

I agree there are actual law suits on this.

SIM-925118 - April 16, 2019, 5:22 pm

Someone back up the story of these idiots. How would you feel if you were the officer?

(Apr 16, 2019 04:52 PM)Im High Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) -Lmao, shut it. Look at your profile, shows the lack of brain cells.

Mr.Peanut II - April 16, 2019, 5:24 pm

This thread is larger than I suspected, I'm glad everyone here is stating their opinion

Im High - April 16, 2019, 5:33 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 05:22 PM)Peloton Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#)

Someone back up the story of these idiots. How would you feel if you were the officer?

Lmao, shut it. Look at your profile, shows the lack of brain cells.

Another incel with nothing to offer to the conversation but cop dick sucking. ?

SIM-925118 - April 16, 2019, 5:41 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 05:33 PM)Im High Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Another incel with nothing to offer to the conversation but cop dick sucking. ?

Where did you get incel from? Lmao. What's wrong with defending our law enforcement officers? Serious question because clearly all you're good for is insulting, and bashing the po po!

Takehito Morokuzu - April 16, 2019, 6:48 pm

I guess the Police are worse in America? I read the comments of the video that someone posted in this thread and apparently they shot people for standing up to people, sometimes killed? This pisses me off so much, that kind of stuff would never happen in the UK (at least what I know of).

Nuworld - April 16, 2019, 7:04 pm

Years ago i lived and worked in L.A. for 13 years.

Police in California can stop/pull you over for many reasons.

They do not need to be a moving violation.
Examples can be.

Window tint.
Non operational headlight/tail lights.
Non operational license plate lite.
Cracked/broken windshield.
Objects hanging from rear-view mirror.
Missing gas cap.

The list goes on.
No matter the reason the OP was stopped, law informant officers have ever right to ask for your ID.

There is a law here in the U.S. that applies to most states within the U.S.

STOP AND IDENTIFY STATUTES IN THE UNITED STATES

Quote:a person required to provide their name to a police officer who stops them? In June 2004, the Supreme Court ruled that a suspect had been lawfully arrested and prosecuted for refusing to give his name during a police stop. In Hiibel v. Sixth Judicial District Court of Nevada, 542 U.S. 177 (2004), the Court reasoned that a state statute can require a suspect to disclose his or her name in the course of a brief stop, if the detention was based on reasonable suspicion of a crime. Therefore, if state law requires identifying yourself to an officer, refusing to answer a request for one's name during a stop could lead to an arrest.

However! in this case the Op is within California State that does NOT recognizes this statutes.
The option to request identification is still valid.

Quote:Certain police unions have claimed that Hiibel combined with the general obstruction statute creates a duty to identify.

Soruce:

https://www.ilrc.org/sites/default/files/resources/stop_identify_statutes_in_us-lg-20180201v3.pdf

Bottom line is OP is lucky he was not charged with obstructing official police business.
In L.A. when getting pulled over? do as your told or you'll end up on the 5 o'clock news.

Mr.Peanut II - April 16, 2019, 8:30 pm

(Apr 16, 2019 07:04 PM)Nuworld Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Years ago i lived and worked in L.A. for 13 years.
Police in California can stop/pull you over for many reasons.

They do not need to be a moving violation.
Examples can be.

Window tint.
Non operational headlight/tail lights.
Non operational license plate lite.
Cracked/broken windshield.
Objects hanging from rear-view mirror.
Missing gas cap.

The list goes on.

No matter the reason the OP was stopped, law informant officers have every right to ask for your ID.

There is a law here in the U.S. that applies to most states within the U.S.

STOP AND IDENTIFY STATUTES IN THE UNITED STATES

However! in this case the OP is within California State that does NOT recognize this statute. The option to request identification is still valid.

Source:

https://www.ilrc.org/sites/default/files/resources/stop_identify_statutes_in_us-lg-20180201v3.pdf

Bottom line is OP is lucky he was not charged with obstructing official police business. In L.A. when getting pulled over? do as you're told or you'll end up on the 5 o'clock news. If he can pull me over for whatever reason he wants but "police cannot force you to show ID without just cause, so they cannot arrest you for simply refusing to identify yourself. California does not have what is called a "Stop and Identify" or "Papers Please" statute that requires you to produce identification to the police when asked."

Bosk - April 17, 2019, 3:19 am

(Apr 16, 2019 04:52 PM)Im High Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You're an actual idiot and you know nothing.

How far are you able to take that cop cock?

Rights are the only things that keep us from tyranny and you're here like LOL stop trying to exploit your rights huehuehue.

Rights are there so you do NOT get exploited by cops who prey on people every day.

Rights only protect those who need them? ARE YOU FUCKING RETARDED? Rights are for everyone.

You're clearly a child with no idea how the real world works and you offer no real input or anything of value to this discussion besides your "feelings".

Answer my question you beta: What are you trying to achieve by refusing to give out your ID?

You're not a thinking human, you act out of feelings and principles.

Moskov - April 17, 2019, 4:30 am

I would not fck with cops as they can shoot you

Woods - April 17, 2019, 4:47 am

I'm happy you know your rights OP.

I would have been in your situation I would have begun recording. In any state, you are allowed to audio record any police officer on duty. I live in a small town full of redneck trash by my school and the police are notorious for being jackasses and racists. (Yes, I am black)

Pawnhub - April 17, 2019, 6:34 am

Next time your best bet is to just do what they say and beat them in court.

Helps if you invest in a dash cam and thats like 25$

RoadTo2ndBrick - April 17, 2019, 8:22 am

Out here in the Netherlands the cops are always seeking Fines, thats all. But when answering back they are easily offended

SIM-925118 - April 17, 2019, 6:47 pm

(Apr 17, 2019 04:47 AM)Woods Wrote: CITE I'm happy you know your rights OP.

I would have been in your situation I would have begun recording. In any state, you are allowed to audio record any police officer on duty. I live in a small town full of redneck trash by my school and the police are notorious for being jackasses and racists. (Yes, I am black)

Is this you in the video?