(A) sounds like a job for the police. if you dont want to do that, (B) complain to the manager, if that's not up your alley © you could just beat some ass. Although it sounds like you wouldn't be able to rip the wings off a fly, so you should go with A or B.

vagabond - April 22, 2019, 2:25 am blackmail their landlord until he forces them to move out

I337 - April 22, 2019, 2:32 am

maybe cut the power or a Power Outage? :D

RooshV - April 22, 2019, 2:36 am

Never complain to neighbors who play loud music. It will embolden them and give them a target. People who play loud music to annoy people are the worst kind of people. If you would have just called the police they would have been paranoid about who did it instead of learning from their mistakes and being a good neighbor. They would hold a grudge against random people thinking it was them who called the police instead of take consequences for their own actions and own up to their mistakes. I hate people who play loud music btw. They want attention and most of the time they are druggies.

Hack through their network and close their Spotify app whenever they open it.

Celibate - April 22, 2019, 3:47 am

Wait until they go to church or something and break in and ether steal or break all their equipment Remember to put a sock over your shoe so you don't leave foot prints

What if it's not from Spotify ?

Well, I mean, if you have access to close Spotify, you'll be able to close anything else on their PC.

Or if they play music through a Hi-Fi system, just cut their power violently until their electronics get burned.

PS. @OP don't do that last one.

Some people are playing songs from their phones, but yea i got your point. As of the last thing you mentioned this will be fun ?

When I was a beta skid a couple year ago, I was turning off the projector in the amphitheater through my phone until the lamp died at some point. Guess who didn't take that lecture.

I know it was stupid and I'm really ashamed of me but I did it. Sad.

LOL ? I did arp spoofing when i had ccna lecture, it was hella fun

Takehito Morokuzu - April 22, 2019, 5:03 am

Try to bruteforce their WiFi network. Once successful try to see if you can login to their router configuration page. If you can do that, then you can add firewall rules to block website such as youtube, spotify, etc and they wont be able to stream it again

ShinyThings - April 22, 2019, 5:07 am

Taking over the router is probably easiest and fastest way.

Elweth - April 22, 2019, 5:19 am

You could try sending deauth packets to his network, disabling him.

Cocaine - April 22, 2019, 8:45 am

You could technically through hacking but who knows how they are even playing the music. I suggest beating some ass. Don't call the cops thats lame.

f o r m i d a b l e - April 22, 2019, 8:47 am

Of course! Make non-emergency call to police.

Omniscient - April 22, 2019, 9:03 am

Likely they stream music. Choices are to disrupt their internet or cut their power. But even more reasonable is to complain to landlord or the police.

Are you in an apartment? If not and it's another home and it's the middle of the day you might not have much recourse other than to be an asshole and confront them.

I am surprised no one linked this video yet.

He also has a demo video on how he did it.

Goodluck!

Omniscient - April 22, 2019, 9:35 am

Awesome video. That's fantastic magic. Pretty funny and maybe we should rename HF to "Magic Forum" and say everything that happens is just magic.

Like those drug forums where everything is SWIM.

Sunniebeta - April 22, 2019, 9:43 am

Cops won't really do shit. They'll just tell them to turn it down and that's all they can do.

Mix - April 22, 2019, 9:54 am

Hack there internet if they are streaming it.

Where can I buy this wand sir? I would love to practice magic and join Hogwarts.

Giin - April 22, 2019, 1:45 pm

cutting their power is the best choice

Oran2009 - April 22, 2019, 6:59 pm

Dox then ddos. Cut them out of their network. If they got offline music, then screw them.

PerfectStorm - April 22, 2019, 7:01 pm

Yeah call the police. Seriously, you think they might notice it being off? lol

Slankey™ - April 22, 2019, 7:13 pm

Find their car, put BBs in the stem of the tire and screw the cap on. Make sure no cameras and leave a keep your music down note

Mercury - April 22, 2019, 10:56 pm
