Thread: Do you think women get harassed more online?

Mr. Robot - April 24, 2019, 4:27 pm

internethealthreport reported that women get harassed more online - I highly doubt and question their statistics.

Let's assume they are looking at statistics for the most common websites.

Reddit.

Facebook.

YouTube.

Twitter.

Instagram.

Twitch.

Tumblr.

>> Ok so at which point can you say that any of those mean women get harassed more than men? I even disagree on the idea that they have more sexual harassment.

As far as I am concerned, i've been harassed 10x more than the average female internet user - that comes down to the activity you partake in, which more posts/activity anywhere online is male.

As far as Tumblr, Instagram and Twitter - well that's not the internet.

This is the same with skin color, religion or anything else.

Lulz - April 24, 2019, 4:29 pm

Yes indeed, it's even an old FB tactic to get your page likes up (before page transparency)

Mercury - April 24, 2019, 4:31 pm

I would imagine so considering the fear of rejection is psychologically minimized for most men on the internet.

Would you rather get shot down publicly or in some thots DM's?

Astrogen - April 24, 2019, 4:43 pm

Sexual harassment, they post close-to-nudes pictures of them and some guys ask for more pictures by messaging them and in a bad way.

UnknownProducts - April 24, 2019, 4:45 pm

of course. internet should mirror real life.

ShinyThings - April 24, 2019, 4:47 pm

Probably... For some reason the guys who can't get girls get pleasure out of making them cry.

Yeah but a lot of girls dump screenshots of DM's that make guys look like freaks, you see it a lot especially with famous people e.g mia khalifa.

I agree tho, it depends on what you post online, the thing about computers is it doesn't matter who you are behind them, like think of wheels (the guy that made 8ch). Your level of harassment, both sexual and non sexual is directly correlated with your activity.

gore - April 24, 2019, 6:10 pm

If you and a female were both active here on HF the same degree, same areas, etc (and it was known that you were male and the other female) then yes, I'd say they'd get harassed more than you.

It's very bias and depends heavily on the circumstances though. HF is very male-dominated so it does make a bit more sense compared to other areas of the internet.

Cocaine - April 24, 2019, 6:12 pm

Social media should not count. It is the same as normal everyday life. Females do get harassed more in person. It is a given. But elsewhere eh I beg to differ.

Venusaur - April 24, 2019, 6:22 pm

As a woman, let me straight up say, yes we do.

red - April 24, 2019, 6:23 pm

I think statistically speaking it is impossible for women to not be SEXUALLY harassed online more than men. Simple reason being females crave attention, they turn to social media for that attention, then they realize the only way to get a lot of attention is by putting themselves out there in revealing clothing. Then obviously they will receive a couple or maybe even hundreds of "sexual harassment" comments in some circumstances and then victim hood themselves thinking that others are the issue when in reality it is social media making everyone crave attention so badly. So they know this and have monopolized the internet and are now censoring more than ever. Welcome to 2019.

lust - April 24, 2019, 6:25 pm

Absolutely, there are some thirsty ass guys out there.

pasterenabler - April 24, 2019, 6:56 pm

This question should be obvious, lol. I'm no feminist but yes, they get harassed more generally.

BTC - April 24, 2019, 6:58 pm

I think humanity was at an all-time high of cyber bullying and harassment back in the 2012 xbox live days. You could play for 1 hour and have more people harassing you in comparison to a year on all those platforms listed ?

We don't know what they based the stats off, but I am sure the majority of harassment online is done through video games.

Bob White - April 24, 2019, 7:00 pm

Yes my wife gets harassed more often in BR games for being a girl.

?rescent - April 24, 2019, 7:21 pm

I think it's in the middle, I believe guys get harassed online and just don't talk about it while girls do.

John F. Kennedy - April 24, 2019, 8:35 pm

Probably more specifically sexual harassment, yes.

I don't know, some games are so toxic. You will play with some randoms and all a sudden every 13 year old kid is telling you they fucked your mom. I think it still happens to guys, even more than women depending on the platform / game.

On call of duty, every 13 year old has fucked your mom.

I never thought of them talking shit like this as sexual harassment towards me though.

Ahmad - April 24, 2019, 9:40 pm

yea ofcourse seen it first hand

bevc - April 25, 2019, 12:46 am

Women get harassed all the time, it's no wonder they're all crazy.

("Men fuck things up. Women are fucked up. Boys just do damage to your house that you can measure in dollars like a hurricane. Girls leave scars in your psyche that you find later like a genocide or atrocity." - Louis CK).

RooshV - April 25, 2019, 1:29 am

Women complain and make an over dramatic emotional cry for attention about it and men don't.

James Burnham - April 25, 2019, 1:45 am

No they don't. They just like to pretend they do so people be extra nice to them. If you are a guy and you say something provocative getting people cursing at you is frequent. I haven't seen anything similar happening to a woman and that is because attacking women is considered worse than attacking men. Men are more likely to receive death threats too.

Inquisitor - April 25, 2019, 1:54 am

How does one even harass on Facebook or Instagram? It's ruled by heavy censorship and rules. Harassing somebody even only once will likely result in an account ban.

I agree with you buddy :)

?ystem - April 25, 2019, 9:37 am

I do think women get harassed more online than males do, mainly because they're regarded as being simpler targets for whatever things some assholes think of. Heck, I even witnessed it happen here many years ago when a user revealed herself to be female. Loads of people, I can't remember who exactly, flocked to her reputation and tried very hard to get her attention.

Leimone - April 25, 2019, 2:32 pm

nywhere on the webs or in any game you get told to go kys, f your mother or whatever else. Girls might get harassed in other ways but in terms of harassment it's just across the board.

Winds - April 25, 2019, 3:30 pm

I mean, that's just common sense at this point.

luke - April 25, 2019, 6:43 pm

Women definitely get harassed more online.

scam. - April 25, 2019, 9:12 pm

I think part of it may be a mans idea of harassment is different than a womans idea of harassment. Like if people are talking shit to me I don't consider that harassment where a woman may

From my experiences from when I played games I don't think I ever saw a girl in a game not getting hounded by people though.

On the flip side a lot of girls online are hailed as something special and given a shit load of positive attention too

This lol watch omg a girl on youtube, when is the last time you played a csgo game with a girl and she didn't get rape threats and tked, i feel like op's definition of harassment is people saying mean things to him which i wouldnt say id harassment

SIM-4030428 - April 26, 2019, 5:48 am

Oh cmon, women get harassed way more than men.

XwhoXamXiX - April 27, 2019, 5:34 am

As a woman in this community I can say yes ... it's a male dominated community ..so most of the harassment has come from people who struggle to understand a woman on here ...if something isn't the norm to some people ...they fear it ...with fear comes hatred.

Not all people though :)

SecretAchiever101 - April 27, 2019, 7:58 am

Well if be sexual harassment you mean getting a bunch of thirsty dudes in their social platforms DMs ,well then,Of course yes.

That's why ewhoring is still relevant haha

Elweth - April 27, 2019, 8:00 am

Definitely more so in current context.

ibite - April 27, 2019, 8:10 am

We definitely do, online it's can be easier to avoid it, but you can't go blocking someone in real life. Well, you can, but it's not as easy! lol

This is what I agree with.

You could flame, shit talk me, threaten & spam me but that's not really what i'd consider harassment.

Only time I'd consider I've been harassed online is when a IRL stalker made fake accounts on FB to post bullshit on my wall & called the police on me random times at night.

so virgins are on the internet is ur last part.

the amount of dick sucking girl gamers get cancel out the toxicity

Mix - April 27, 2019, 6:19 pm

Depends where they go online and what they say and do. most females hide there identity or just pretend they are male as they dont want to deal with the harassment. for an example, if a girl goes online gaming they get harrassed 9 times out of 10

Psychedelic. - April 29, 2019, 4:01 am

Haha, probably not true. Theyre more likely to report it.

Marshmallow - April 29, 2019, 4:37 am

Men certainly get far more harassment than women.

Because of a couple reasons.

There are more men to be harassed.

Men don't have white knights jumping out to attack their every critic.

It's far more acceptable to harass a man and doing so would have little to no consequences for the harasser unlike harassing a woman.

Vitani's Mate - April 29, 2019, 5:06 am

Well yeah if you take slutty pictures of yourself with your tits almost out and in sexual poses like you want dick in the cunt, asshole and mouth all the time.

Stick to the kitchen and make me a big ol' sammach.

Bossk - April 29, 2019, 5:11 am

Yes, they do. No point in denying that mr. robotics.
