Whats the forums thoughts on this? After noticing the term "Smart Contract" pop up more and more, including hints from Samsung and Microsoft, I did more research and decided I wasn't going to miss out on being early to this technology.

Was trading at .38 cents when I posted this thread. Now at .93 and rising. Mainnet Rollout May 30th, it's just beginning.

Get in while you still can under $1 :)

Here is the link to the team (scroll to bottom) <https://chain.link/company/> , including Evan Cheng the Director of Engineering at Facebook, Yorke Rhodes the co-inventor of Microsoft's Blockchain, Tom Gosner the founder of DocuSign, and Hudson Jameson the Community Manager for Ethereum.

When people way smarter than me, and way busier than me are spending their time and resources on ChainLink such as The Director of Engineering at Facebook, etc etc. It really shows the powers at work here behind the scenes.

ChainLink/SmartContracts are very anti-hype. They hardly release any info as it is and the marketing campaign doesn't kick in until Ethereum Mainnet rolls out May 30th.

ChainLink (or Smart Contracts) stands to solve a multi-billion dollar problem. You know how the rest of the saying goes.

Handsome-Jack - April 25, 2019, 6:24 pm

With the analysis that a lot of the worlds economy is going to go on the blockchain in the next few decades, I wouldn't miss out. Holding a small chunk as suicide insurance.

Have significantly increased my holdings, and LINK is now up and hovering around .70 cents, with a full 10 days of conferences and announcements to go.

Don't miss out on buying in under $1... do your research on the Billion dollar problems $LINK is solving.

Just be mindful selling it, or you'll end up like the guy who spent 10,000 bitcoins on a slice of pizza in NY.

Do some reading on the billions of dollars in solutions SmartContracts are providing :)

30% or not, you'd rather have a stack of Link to sell at $1k than what you sold at 80 cents

I saw this thread when you posted it but didn't have time to research or comment.

1. Company registered in Cayman Islands. That's a good thing. It's #4 banking country in the world. The address is actually a law office in a high-end district. Unsure how far their banking relationships go but it's a start.

2. Website is very nice with good information and well-written. It's impressive.

3. Works off Ethereum chain. That's good too but imho there is a limit in value to ERC-20 tokens.

4. "Chainlink was developed as the first decentralized oracle that can provide external data to smart contracts" that's from their site and is a brief description to what the technology does.

5. Where is the team and developers? I am finding it hard to locate them. This is a bad thing. Any blockchain is only as good as the leaders imho. So far they seem faceless. This is a negative.

I been wrong about Alt-coins before like Waltonchain which ironically this reminds me of.

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5708465>

You can see it was $1.45 when that thread started (Sept 2017) and then ran high but today it's only at $2.20.

A lot of these ICO's might be coming now that blockchain is hot again. I stay clear of anything that's not new technology and innovative. If you want to gamble on speculation and hype then enjoy the ride wherever it takes you.

As for price, the $1.45 ATH occurred during the alt coin madness frenzy. Where we are at now is much much more structured, with a lot more substance behind it as well. But I'm not sure what you mean about $2.20, we're currently at $1.015 at the time I'm posting this Depends what you call too fast. This has been a build up for a long time. Mainnet rollout 10 days away, the price is only continuing up. <https://i.imgur.com/sw99zuF.png>

Don't sit on the sideline too long!

This is seriously just the beginning. There has been corrections all along the way, the support has been built up.

I was just checking it out on binance and see that it is hitting support if it bounces up then I can certainly see a new ATH coming in, it sucks because I have to wait 1 more day before I can transfer my ETH into binance.

Else I would certainly see how this support line plays and get in on this with a stop loss.

I'm holding now. Won't consider selling unless it's $5. I was swinging it until I realized how bullish this shit is. It's literally the #1 performing coin since 2018 (through the bear market) when looking at coins with greater than >5m market cap. Gonna be spending every last dollar I have on this coin every week honestly and save some so I can live the bare minimum lifestyle. Last time I felt this sure about something was AntShares before they rebranded to NEO.

I feel the exact same way brother. But $5 is still way too soon (in my opinion).

Over a year or two this can very realistically reach $100+. My pie in the sky dream (and what /biz/ is aiming for) is $1k as Smart Contracts become the standard way of doing business over the coming years.

100 per chainlink would put it to Ethereum's market cap right now. Who knows? I mean... XRP hit 100b market cap last year. Man I would be so rich if it hit $100/Chainlink

Have to keep in mind that Ethereum is also $1100 down from its ATH. When the Bitcoin halvening happens in less than a year from now, it'll be a very exciting time for the whole crypto space. Pair that with the almost daily Partnership & Integration announcements with ChainLink.. $100 is low ;)

I haven't taken a cent of profit and I don't plan on it anytime in the next 18 months. The scale of the problem this project solves really can't be measured with dollars. We're talking trillions of dollars in derivatives, contracts, administration bloat.

Google, Microsoft, Oracle are just a couple of the many many partnerships and integrations that have been announced recently.

You are currently investing in Amazon when it was still being build in a garage.

Current profit yes, but you're buying back with smaller amounts of LINK each time.

Swinglinkers have been getting rekt in that regard. I'll take my millions in a couple years over miniscule profits now. I don't need to take profits to pay my bills currently.

The magnitude of the partnerships coming out, You can very easily find yourself on the wrong side of a swing because you wanted to take small profit.

My average buy in price is well below 50 cents still, I have no interest in re-buying more at these prices. My bag is packed already.

That's completely fine, and if you sold at 2000 and a partnership came out that nobody was expecting (which has been happening almost daily in the last 30 days), and sats go to 2200, which has also happened quite often (increase), then you're left holding your lighter bag.

By all means, take profits and day trade. It normally works very well, but it won't end the same with ChainLink. It's still severely undervalued.

Whats the forums thoughts on this? After noticing the term "Smart Contract" pop up more and more, including hints from Samsung and Microsoft, I did more research and decided I wasn't going to miss out on being early to this technology.

Was trading at .38 cents when I posted this thread. Now at .93 and rising. Mainnet Rollout May 30th, it's just beginning.

Get in while you still can under $1 :)

Here is the link to the team (scroll to bottom) <https://chain.link/company/> , including Evan Cheng the Director of Engineering at Facebook, Yorke Rhodes the co-inventor of Microsoft's Blockchain, Tom Gosner the founder of DocuSign, and Hudson Jameson the Community Manager for Ethereum.

When people way smarter than me, and way busier than me are spending their time and resources on ChainLink such as The Director of Engineering at Facebook, etc etc. It really shows the powers at work here behind the scenes.

ChainLink/SmartContracts are very anti-hype. They hardly release any info as it is and the marketing campaign doesn't kick in until Ethereum Mainnet rolls out May 30th.

ChainLink (or Smart Contracts) stands to solve a multi-billion dollar problem. You know how the rest of the saying goes.

I feel that's what usually happens , gives people who want to buy another opportunity and whales will try to accumulate more. So many people try to jump on now due to fomo then sell instantly as it falls a bit and causes it to drop & next thing you know it shoots up again and the people who fomo lose money Haha.

So if you decide to invest now , dont panic if it drops a lot in a short time because when you least expect it. it will shoot up again for even greater highs.

We've seen it with NEO, Ethereum , Vechain. & several others !

I'd suggest joining the "Link Marines" community on twitter for up to date information. You won't get much new info from the ChainLink team themselves as they are quite anti-hype, they just keep their heads down and work. The partnership and integration announcements always come from the other side of the partnership, rarely ChainLink themselves.

Do yourself a favor and do some research on the technology behind it. You think Amazon, Google, Microsoft and Oracle would care about just another alt coin?

Soul - June 30, 2019, 9:38 pm

I plan on buying when it drops to around $2.50.

Wish I saw this thread when it was first posted.

It's dropping at like a bad habit currently. What is to be expected going forward?

It just went up cause all that partnership news were announced, it's gonna drop more, :)

I sold at 4$, maybe going back when it drops to 1.5-2 again :)

Alright I'm sort of new to altcoins. What's the easiest place for someone in the Us to buy and trade chain link.

You really think so? I'm still holding on for a much higher rise in the long term. Did buy a chunk and dump a chunk, but I do expect long term success for this coin. What do you think?

Don't listen to him, look at a 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 month chart on this project. This is nothing but another dip.

One entity purchased over $47 million worth of Link yesterday. 4 new addresses were created and within 5 minutes started getting loaded with 100,000 LINK transfers. Just under 15 million Link total.

Uncreated address to #12 largest Link wallet in 15 minutes

If you think WE are smarter than people with this kind of money, You've got a rude awakening coming.

GET IN LINK WHILE YOU STILL CAN

Corporations (or a person...) are in the mass accumulation stage. Once they are satisfied with the amount they have, the price suppression will stop and the explosion will continue.

Did you read that Forbes article fully?

Quote:"I think the difference between Facebook and Google is that Facebook may have a real interest in payment and crypto stuff, but Google may have an interest in building these highly useful contracts by building useful infrastructure to make that possible."

Basically saying that one is a store of value while the other is pure technology.

Great technology: 100%

yep this coin is the darkhorse. will be worth a few hundred some day.

The sad part of the story is that guys who bought Link TOKENS have ABSOLUTELY no idea what it is, they just think that they're smart cause they made profit cause market cap increased by 1-2 billion dollars from whales who will take the profit as poor boys buy this token :]

We've seen whale pumps multiple times in crypto-verse, all I expect is to see poor guys cry for their 200 dollars once this token go to the bottom as deserves.

Jump in BTC-ETH-XMR train before it's too late.

Sorry, not sorry ?

Tbh, I don't even care if this is a shitcoin or not. It's pumping and I'm making money so whatever. I originally dropped $2,000 into it at $1.32 and am still buying. ?

BTC/ETH/XMR great investments too. Check out Orion Protocol (ORN). I just bought some a couple of weeks ago. Looks promising.

Nice work. I remember wanting to short it at $4, I'm glad I didn't.

Sitting at $13.40 at the moment, LINK Marines did work.

Not sure but I don't practice the habit of buying a pumping token.

Luckily though, I did purchase a nice amount of ATOM a while back for around $2-3 and we're pumping along with BAND & LINK so I'm happy, no need to be greedy.
