Thread: Partner Search In search of someone that would like to have their capital traded for

TheBitcoinBear - May 8, 2019, 12:02 pm

I've spent many years in the markets, trading primarily FX and Crypto as of recently. Currently looking to speak with someone that would be interested in having their capital traded for them with a share of profits. I don't currently have the required amount of capital to switch to trading full time and am looking for people to be able to provide the means for me to do so (I have a well developed, profitable trading strategy, with loads of proof in regard to past trades). There are ways that you can have your capital traded by me as well without needing to offer me any sort of control over the money (though I would be requesting a payout of my profits weekly in this case). If you're interested and would like to discuss this further, please shoot me a PM!

If that's true, you'll probably get someone interested in this (the probability is very low). I highly doubt someone will hand over their money to a person whom they dont know to trade for them.

But again, I have seen people giving away 1000$ in giveaways. So they wouldn't mind partnering up with you.

Good luck with this OP. Just don't scam out if you really wish to earn money in the long term.

They actually wouldn't need to hand over their money to me - there's ways to manage an account in which they 100% control the funds (as in I am incapable of withdrawing/moving the money out of the exchange).

Yes, I am just looking for something long term. Not here for a quick buck.
