

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Whut? Windows has a built-in screen recorder. Windows key + Alt + R

Raymond "Red" Reddington - May 27, 2019, 3:39 pm

This is ridiculous.

Never knew about this.

Was browsing through some Reddit posts for the best free Windows screen recorder, and after having downloaded OBS, I stumbled upon a post where it says Windows has an built-in screen recorder. Native and even records internal audio.

It's crazy.

Try it yourself.

Windows key + Alt + R

By the way, while at it I also discovered

Windows key + Shift + S

Source:

<https://betanews.com/2019/01/14/windows-10-screen-recorder-utility/>

MattTheWhiteHat - May 27, 2019, 3:44 pm

I always use Windows Key + G, and screen record using game mode.

duplex - May 27, 2019, 3:47 pm

Just checked it out, looks really clean too, I guess they hide their products well lol

ShinyThings - May 27, 2019, 3:49 pm

Windows has really added a lot of features and continues to grow into the household all around use market

I N C R E D I B L E - May 27, 2019, 5:25 pm

Just to add it.

I'm using Windows 10 Pro N Edition. and it's not available in there.

webdev77 - May 30, 2019, 9:11 am

(May 27, 2019 05:25 PM)INCR?Đ!ßLE Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Just to add it.

I'm using Windows 10 Pro N Edition. and it's not available in there.

You likely need to install the game bar app manually. There are likely dependencies your version is missing due to lack of media software.