

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Contract question

Pronouncer - June 14, 2019, 6:11 am

What do i do as a vendor as i get a lot of these. people open contracts then dont end up purchasing?

Lavish Living - June 14, 2019, 6:12 am

Just let them expire or cancel them if you really feel inclined to do so lol

Pronouncer - June 14, 2019, 6:12 am

As im aware it always shows as they marked it as compelte?

Hell - June 14, 2019, 6:14 am

I think it's just users trying to boost their B rating.

Hopsin - June 14, 2019, 6:19 am

(Jun 14, 2019 06:12 AM)Pronouncer Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) As im aware it always shows as they marked it as compelte?

If they marked as completed but haven't then simply contact them. Give them some time. If they ignore or find excuses, you are allowed to open dispute.

Or...

you just decline those contracts or let them expire. That's it.

Lavish Living - June 14, 2019, 6:22 am

(Jun 14, 2019 06:19 AM)Hopsin Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If they marked as completed but haven't then simply contact them. Give them some time. If they ignore or find excuses, you are allowed to open dispute.

Or...

you just decline those contracts or let them expire. That's it.

All contracts started with a vendor template are auto marked complete on the buyers side.

Vendors can either let them expire or cancel them if the buyer doesn't end up purchasing

Hopsin - June 14, 2019, 6:23 am

(Jun 14, 2019 06:22 AM)Lavish Living Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) All contracts started with a vendor template are auto marked complete on the buyers side.

Vendors can either let them expire or cancel them if the buyer doesn't end up purchasing

Didn't saw he was vendor. My bad. Still, this applies for non-vendor members.

Evil - June 14, 2019, 7:10 am

You should double check that they didn't purchase. I usually open the contract and purchase and sometimes it doesn't autocomplete as I have connection issues with my vpn and I even message the seller to complete the contract as I am satisfied but they ignore me. But ya, for those who don't purchase just let them expire.

Omniscient - June 14, 2019, 1:56 pm

You should cancel them and not provide them B-Ratings for deals they didn't do.

