Thread: Premium Hacking Tutorial Section.

Bring back the Premium hacking tutorial section so that threads that can actually help people learn something are separated from threads of people asking users to hack there girlfriends Facebook/Instagram.

Some users work hard on there threads and the content they put out and its a shame to see that pushed below some one who created an account that day or yesterday requesting a free hacking service essentially.

I wasn't registered on-site when that feature was available.

But if this gets implemented, there's no negative impact of this. Can see this getting implemented.

I would like to see what other members think about this.

I would like to see this on HF.

I would contribute to a section like that, maybe we can actually help people learn around here.

This'd be nice. Too much shitting goes on in the hacking forums for anything worthy to be prominent and available to new users. Obviously there's such thing as a search feature, but window shopping is what keeps members around.

I'd also be happy to moderate such a section :D

Rule number one of wanting to become a moderator, don't ask to be a moderator.

You still have tutorials separated. If you see a thread that shouldn't be there, use the report button. There's no need for a separate section as there isn't enough activity.
