Thread: Heavy Breathing Noise in Midnight outside

Snoopis - June 25, 2019, 4:03 pm

So is 1 AM rn and at midnight I went to give my dogs some food. When I finished I started hearing this really heavy breathing noise that sounded like it was just right outside my garden walls however when I got closer I realized is further away. I threw rocks and did noises at the direction that the heavy breathing was coming and nothing...no moves nothing. The breathing sometimes stops and then continues again. Later on after 15min a second heavy breathing started too. I got out of my garden to take a look and couldnt see anything and couldnt hear any movements. There is no chance that it could be a dog or wolf since the sound is super loud and also if it was something when I threw a lot of rocks atleast they would move. Also im not in a really saturated animal area. Most common animals are dogs rarely wolfs and rarely bears which I dont think it can be one. Does anyone have any same experience or has any idea on what it can be? Also my dog went outside too and he didnt notice anything since he is pretty aggressive with other animals and would engage if he would have noticed something which for me sounded like it was very close. Thanks.....

Adding: So i proceeded to go closer to the noise and it stopped for like 20 seconds, after that I can hear the noise again but further away and I didnt hear a single shit. Not a single fucking movement not a grass fucking moved. Just got back inside cuz this was a bit too fucking weird for me at 1 AM. If anyone has experienced the same or has any ideas on what is going on let me know!

Could be a couple enjoying in car ? Im in country side lols and I also followed the noise but it just went further and further so I went back inside.

Here is a video I recorded. You can barely hear it but it sounds like I am breathing but I was holding my breath mos of the time so I could pick up the noise. wierbreathing.mp4 - Google Drive
