Thread: \$100K in sales in 3 months \(Shopify\)

Angel - June 26, 2019, 3:15 am

Recently I passed $100K in sales with my Shopify store.

I started in February (4 months ago), this store is selling from March 1th.
I tested like 4~5 products before I found this product.

July's goal is $100K in revenue - Not easy to scale...

The cool thing is once you learn FB ads and you know to recognize a potential winning product it's easy.

Thanks to Squalo for the help when I started his tips really helped me!
Thanks for ForeverR he helped a lot via IG

Quick Edit:

I got also approved for Shopify Fulfillment center, it is the same as Amazon FBA but its 2-day shipping.

What do you sell for example, how you consider a winning product?
Are that clothes, electronics or something like watches etc ?

Do you think it's too late to get into it?

FILTERED - June 26, 2019, 10:58 am

Oh, my god. That's a large amount!

Good shit man! What is your final profit %? Be sure to pay your taxes ;)

Seaox - June 26, 2019, 5:21 pm

How much do you get off of that?

No, it won't be ever but, the game changes every day, you need to adapt and overcome the changes.

About 27~30%, even with 20% I'll be happy :)
There are people who make 10% profit of their sales, so I am at a good profit margin.

Imao, I actually was waiting for someone to ask for proof because I didn't have time to add any proof here when I created this thread.
But I'll add later because I am busy enough to not care about you believing or not.

Nah, but he helped at the start of my "journey" and I still use some of the tips he gave me a few months ago.

Yes, and eBay isn't profitable anymore.
