I didn't really look into the service, but are out payments being routed through you guys? How are you generating custom addresses?

Is there risk of you doing a exit scam type thing and taking everyones BTC when transactions stop going through?

For those of you that don't know, when they generate a vanity address that means they also have the private keys to that address.

Hi everyone, thank you for the questions!

We use a provably secure split-key system. This means that we never have access to your private keys! They are only accessible by you on your device.

We do not control your wallets, because we allow you to make your own keys. We simply power the technology, and computing power behind the process.
