

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Weird discord shit.

Mr. Robot - July 11, 2019, 7:56 am

Sometime in the last hour, A discord channel I owned and never invited anyone to magically reappeared ...

I know for a fact I deleted it and it has one message (an email address) dated ??01/07/2019 (January) - I closed/deleted all the servers I was in 3 months ago and pretty sure I closed that one only a few hours after creating it as I just needed to copy paste that email.

Something is definitely wrong here.

I'll try find a screenshot recently to show it wasn't there.

Only explanation - they don't delete channels, no surprise there - and some bug reactivated my connection to the server.

Just more obvious reasons as to why you shouldn't use shitcord.

Edit: Heres a shot from 06/23/19

int - July 11, 2019, 9:10 am not surprised, at least its not as garbage as facebook

its support team is way worse though, furry pedos

Dotexe - July 11, 2019, 9:16 am

This is also interesting

Mr. Robot - July 17, 2019, 12:18 pm

(Jul 11, 2019 09:13 AM)Red Sox Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Rarely if ever use Discord. Utter shit. Indeed it is.

(Jul 11, 2019 09:16 AM)Dotexe Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) This is also interesting
Yeah made a thread with his tool.

Actup - July 17, 2019, 12:32 pm

Now this is some interesting shit. I didn't know that discord had an app you could download onto desktop but apparently this also affects if merely browsing through google chrome. Forget about logs, discord is literally opening you up to legal liabilities for things you have no connection to AND costing you resources such as disk space.

Threads like these deserve to go viral so people can find out whats going on. Nice share guys