HonoredVideos - July 18, 2019, 7:03 am

Look i know its asked alot but you know ... uhm im special. joking . if you have time you can read :D if not then nvm XD

Okay so just finished college, ive been looking into AF for a while and have been doing it on instagram basically prompting a service that grows your followers and you can make money by reffering people its okay i guess, not sure ill make a living but thats why i want to ask,.

what would you reccomend i learn and put all my time into?
Dropship, Affiliate Marketing, Day Trading Or Other???

I know theres sub sections for all but maybe you can tell me the so called best one you think i should learn from scratch, soon as i have time now to rather find a job or learn somthing.

im from uk if that makes any differnce maybe one of them is going to be more successful in the uk idk? Id be happy with an income of 30k a year, thats it. dont need 6 figures llike seriously my goal is 30k a year profit so.

I tried ebay DS but i was using software which got me banned and ive heard that manual DS is better. But then people say dont do ebay at all switch to amazon. and then theres Shopify and getting traffic from ads or facebook or instagram etc..... Trading i dont know anything about really lol i just saw people make money :P

Soon as im 18 i mean I dont have TUNS to invest i guess? depends how much.
Maybe you can give me a answer upon if money is no limit and an option if moeny is a limit. Ive heard that trading Is a money needed so uh m

But yeah, what would you say i should start early on and master?
Ive paid for a few courses but wont spend alot on them so i didnt buy anymore. Maybe if you would teach me one on one id pay you for a mentor? im only 18 though so please dont think i can pay you grands :P maybe if you mentor me and i make however much, then i can pay you back with my profit because id tottaly do that. even if it would cost me 2k id be happy because then at least its from my profits and its working :D

for now my goal is like idk minimum wage online because well im just being too realsitic, i dont really believe in them courses that say OHH MAKE 6 figures a month, maybe its possible but people are selling the courses to make money :D thats like an online method to make money. courses. so now i dont buy them because yeah.

Anyone could speak to me on chat maybe steam skype discord? maybe mentor me for idk a price or work out something where if i make the money online id happily pay you. or just let me know below? what should i learn :)

You can be successful in all of these things, it all depends on the amount of work you put in, how much you're willing to invest etc.

You're going to need a big investment if you're going to be day trading, and I think that's more of a Casino with better odds, so you can scratch that one off your list.

Dropshipping:

- You get to decide your profit per sale
- Higher conversion rate (at least in my opinion)
- A lot of products are utter shite, or delivered slowly which can cause refunds (Take your time to research your niche)

Affiliate Marketing:

- You're given a percentage of the sale, which could increase if you attract a lot of customers
- Tends to be a lower conversion rate, again my own opinion here.
- You can affiliate for established companies such as Amazon, where refunds etc will be minimum

I don't think one is necessarily more profitable than the other, they're both going to need work and investments in order to pay off. You'll need a domain, hosting, marketing. If you're willing, or already know how to do those things yourself you could also provide them as services (web design, seo, ppc etc). If not there's plenty of people in the marketplace that'll hook you up.

Stay away from everything you mentioned and freelance.

When you are starting out, you have ZERO skills. You don't know how to sell, how to convert text into $$ or keeping existing customers happy.

Freelancing will teach you all of that.
