Thread: I used to be a bully.

Condasoft - July 18, 2019, 2:53 pm

Regrettably, In high school I used to pick on other kids in my year, the year above and the year below, I was pretty tall for my age/size so no one really fucked with me...

Until one day in geography I was slapping some kid in my class on the back of the head and he turned around and punched me in my nose.

I never bullied anyone ever again after that it was what I needed to see the error of my ways.

I Wasn't really a bad kid, I just grew up in a troubled neighborhood, smoked a lot of pot, associated with older guys and like half of my class were bullies too so I guess I was just a product of my environment.

Please don't bully people, it's not nice and you will regret it for the rest of your life because everyone you bullied will just see you as a massive asshole.

Not even sure why I'm telling you this, just felt like I needed to get it off my chest. ?

I grew up with some bad kids in middleschool and highschool, most of them just smoke and sell drugs today.

There was one time we we're at the mall and this grown man probably 30 years old came up to us and started yelling at us. So my friend at the time who was probably 14 or 15 years old probably 6'1 or 6'2ft tall and very skinny no muscle at all lol. he put that 30 year old man in the hospital broken nose, collar bone, he busted both eyecaps, etc and didn't give a single fuck lol

Nah, you were a bad person. You can blame all those influences all you want, truth is, some kids deal with even worse conditions and still manage to pull through. You gotta focus on being the best person you can be, not only for you, but for those kids.

Well your honesty about your past is really appreciated and good for you on admitting it and your awful deeds. I think the world would benefit if more former bullies spoke out about their guilt or change of heart, maybe helping a lot of other bullies to eventually mend old wounds.

If a punch to the face could just make anybody see the error of their ways.....society would be full of broken noses and good people.
