Thread: IPhone App to download music

InvictusLatinus - July 23, 2019, 9:22 am

I need a free app for iPhone xr to download music onto the phone and save the music to be used offline. Do you guys know any? I don't mind if it downloads the audio from YouTube.

Amazon music is a good one. It will allow you to download music to use offline and its free. But you have to find the music you want to download from their library. They say it is constantly updating.

I do recommend to use 3Utools you can easily transfer your downloaded music from your computer to your iphone. Or you can just download some external app there are some out there.. I use spotify can't help on that!

I used to use an application called 'File HD'. There's an inbuilt browser on the app so you can go and find youtube videos then go to a youtube2mp3 site and directly download the audio files into the app. Really good application actually.

Try with those app:

- Total downloader
- MyMP3

Back in the days I always used those apps, right now I'm using Apple Music.

I went with 3uTools; this software is truly God-given/godsent. Using this software, I was able to edit out the part of the audio file I was dealing with, as well as converting the file type along the way. Thanks to everybody who tried to help.

There is a simple app you can download called Documents and what that will allow you to do is go into the browser inside the app and save music.
