If you feel the need to hack her phone, just leave her. If she's cheating, she's cheating. If not, you're the one breaking confidentiality. If the trust isn't there then your relationship is doomed to fail anyway.

As an old investigator, the way it works is that you would have to install software on her phone and yours, some of the software can be installed in stealth mode, but if you know phone some people can tell there is something not quite right

Better off leaving her if you have to spy of her. That's never a good signing
