Haven't had chance to follow up on this because I've been really busy but in late October I paid AL5INA5 $600 in BTC and gave him a two week deadline to complete a project, unlike most freelancers he was very persistent in getting a FULL upfront payment (He even refused to use a MM).

So we agreed that he did around 1-2 pages of the site for the full payment after he showed me all his vouches and stuff, he was working really hard on completing those pages done really fast. However right after I paid him the bitcoin, he stopped working on the project for 10 days and the last 2-3 days or so he made very little progress and those last two days were not enough time to work with the backend developer on implementing it (which I told him before the project) and it wasn't enough time for me to give my input on it either.

Thankfully my backend developer was able to make a decent frontend, however I had to pay him more than I anticipated (because his job was to do the backend while AL5INA5 did the frontend). So this entire situation just ended with an extra hole in my wallet, and I would have posted this soon but however after the deadline I posted I would not be online a lot (which is why the deadline was strict and I gave him two weeks to complete the project).

Overall extremely disappointed by his work, he is a good web designer but with most freelancers if you pay them 100% upfront their productivity will tank.

EDIT: No, it was not nearing completion because a major factor in the timeframe I gave you was to work with the backend developer on implementing the front end smoothly. The "Final sweep" shouldn't have been the last two days of the projects, but rather the beginning of the second week of it. I didn't follow up on the project after the deadline because the deadline was there for a reason, and I have had devs in the past push days or weeks past the deadline and I didn't have time for that in this project.

I was going to ask him to work on a project for me, but now I have seen this I doubt I will. Sad.

Regarding @applec1der,

I am deeply saddened to hear you are unsatisfied, but the project was reaching completion before you stopped replying.

Website is viewable here: <https://bloxland.netlify.com/>

My GitHub history can verify that everything was on course for the time frame.

Per our last message, the website required a full sweep to figure out what was the last steps to make this a finished product. I received no reply for weeks.

Everything was done according to our original agreement. It is sad to see you make this reply.

I wish you luck in your projects and hope you treat hired freelancers better. Thanks for the compliment on my design ability though, I've been working hard for years to be able to take such projects.

Once again—I wish you luck in your future endeavors and am deeply saddened by your comments.

I'm open for projects, please feel free to reach out to me on Discord at youngseebi#1759!

Personal experience with AL5INA5: This user is not very professional and in my opinion looks like he only cares about the money. I tried to ask the user to create a very basic 4-5 page website with minimal info and wouldn't budge from his 500$USD price-point. Once I had informed him that his price-point was personally too high for us, he said he would take our lower offer only if we paid him immediately. After we refused, he had blocked me and added a negative reputation. The user seems very unprofessional and only cares about the money, I feel he would not put much focus on your project.
