Families say seat warmers caused car fires!

CHARLOTTE, NC - Vehicles burned, seats scorched - families blame electric seat warmers for vehicle fires. Some left people with burns.

"I was petrified. I was shaking," said Delecia Jenkins, who lives in north Charlotte. "There were flames."

Lauren Rummell, a first-grade teacher in Indiana, shot a Facebook Live as her car burned. "The inside is completely on fire and is engulfed in flames," she said in the video. "My car is 100% on fire."

I mean I know it gets hot but seriously what if this would happen to one of my kids. Just makes me rethink using them in winter. Too hot to worry about it right now though.

You're titles lately are making me hurt I'm laughing so much.

But OP related, that's some scary ass shit. Imagine driving down the street and you smell a fire. You think your cars overheating. But no, damn seat warmers went and lit a fire in your backseat. ?

But OP related, that's some scary ass Clay Davis. Imagine driving down the street and you smell a fire. You think your cars overheating. But no, damn seat warmers went and lit a fire in your backseat. ?

Glad you guys like them =) I was in a humorous mood last night =)

I am looking into buying a newer and safer heating pad for cars. Does anyone know of a good one to use not like the one in this thread lol?

I looked at the pics, then the description and then realized it was an over-exaggeration.

Pfft don't stress it bro. Those heating pads were either defective or bought for $5 off AliBaba. Even if the ones you buy aren't safe, at least that lawsuit money will keep you safe for a year or two ?
