Thread: Only if you could build a time machine?

allsystems2 - August 10, 2019, 12:13 pm

Imagine you could build a time machine would you go back in time to change the past? Or would you carry on with your life?

What are your opinions?

Hope you all have a great day

Yeah ahaha this but honestly I would never wanted to change the past.
It is how it is.

duplex - August 10, 2019, 12:20 pm

Mmm, it's a tough one, I would love to see what my parents were like

It's good to hear that you are a wiser person, lets say you don't change the past would you go back and watch certain events?

Nope. I prefer not to interfere with anything from the past.. changing my past might also affect other peoples lives..everything happening is all happening for a reason, Trying to change that might affect others that were destined to come across your path.i prefer to Let the Universe do its thing.

I would go into the future somehow get a load of money and bring it back to myself now and destroy the machine. Simple financial stability

Pawnhub - August 10, 2019, 11:20 pm

If I could I wouldn't. Shit happens and I am not trying to roll the dice for a better life. Imagine going into the past to live a new life you walk down a different road and end up getting hit by a drunk driver now that'd be a BIG oof.

Haha exactly because the Universe already got everything all worked out ,trying to change anything might not be the best idea

After seeing a few time travel movies, I'd solely go back to observe. Butterfly effect man. What if you go back and accidentally kill an ancestor? You just erased your whole families bloodline. ?

Flipp Dinero - August 11, 2019, 3:27 am

I would go back in time and tell myself to stop wasting so much fucking time on the computer and go spend time with my family, I've wasted 5 years of my life behind a computer screen for no reason but to play games. I'm trying to stay away, as i have chosen sports so i can stay away from games and shit a lot more so i have more time for my family. I started at 8 years old

I applaud you for that, Very wise lessons. Definitely a wise user for sure! I wish you the best of luck !

That's kinda fucked, I would kill Hitler as a baby so the British wouldn't lose the empire

Definitely agree with that

However, I would love to go back to the 90's ?

But what if killing Hitler turned the cold war into a real nuclear crisis? Time travel (in theory of course) would be so finicky. Solely for things such as stopping someone on the street to ask for a time would then change the day they have. They might be late to work. Then they get fired. Boom a whole bloodline again changed.

Natas - August 11, 2019, 10:17 am

Id go back to 2011 when I thought btc wasn't gonna make it.

From there I think you can figure out what I would do lol.

Handsome Hawk - August 11, 2019, 10:27 am if we have this machine that actually could time travel we must find tech to travel in space cuz every time when you use it you will end far from the planet. but I'm not expert in this but if you guys buys a btc or kill a hitler you made a paradox I guess. CUZ you go to the 2009 buy btc go back and now you are rich but in this time you don't need to use Time Machine and go back to the past for btc cuz you are already rich. I guess could be wrong

If you haven't heard of the butterfly effect, it's basically that altering one small thing in the past could change the whole course of your future for the better or worse. So I wouldn't risk anything like that

HQP HQP HQP.

Also OP: I wouldn't f*ck with time travel solely by the reason that any change I make will probably make the world feel un-natural and that's a form of hell in its own. If I could time travel with loved ones, that's a different story.

The creepy thing..

I was watching "Back to the Future" earlier today..

Now i see this topic about time machines. Crazy!
