

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Is my theme mobile friendly?

hot.drop - August 13, 2019, 5:38 am

I don't have no clue wether my theme currently being used is mobile friendly. Can someone check and let me know ;)

Tradershub.org

sp3cialist - August 17, 2019, 3:46 pm

You can check your page on: responsinator.com

Also you can use Google Pagespeed: developers.google.com/speed/pagespeed/insights

sakun - September 8, 2019, 1:46 pm

You could always resize your browser and test it out.

I tried it on my phone and it's not really mobile friendly. Some lines of text don't wrap.

Condasoft - September 24, 2019, 1:21 am

The most important thing is to determine whether it is mobile friendly is through google search console, because otherwise if it isn't it won't be eligible for full google search index enhancements.

Your web host appears to have suspended your site anyway.

SIM-3790223 - November 27, 2019, 2:47 am

Most main stream web browsers provide the ability to render your site in a mobile view port for developing for mobile designs.

Linux X - November 30, 2019, 4:29 am

You can do this by your self. Just use Dev Option in your browser.

Morpheus - November 30, 2019, 4:31 am

(Nov 27, 2019 03:47 AM)TechTac Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Most main stream web browsers provide the ability to render your site in a mobile view port for developing for mobile designs.

(Nov 30, 2019 05:29 AM)? GRAPHIC PLEASURE ? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You can do this by your self. Just use Dev Option in your browser.Guys, watch the post date please.