Hi

So I been wondering about the possibility of creating a bot that that login to a page , insert the characters (I think there is a service that does this) . And if there is an available appointment I get notified somehow . Can such bot be created , any insight would be great .

Yeah such a thing should be pretty straight forward to make (depending on the site's security), if there is no appointments, the response body will contain that "sorry ..." message so you'll be able to tell from that, how much you looking to pay for this sort of bot?
