Thread: Finding a users IP address on Xbox live?

Jiffy - August 20, 2019, 2:47 pm

First and foremost, if this is in the wrong sub, I apologize. What I'm trying to do is find someone's IP address on Xbox live and I cannot remember how to do it. Any help would be greatly appreciated!

not so possible, xbox is very secure

Vans - August 20, 2019, 7:25 pm

I remember being able to do it it back in the old MW2 days by hosting a lobby or hosting an xbox chat.

Im not sure how microsofts security is today, but one way of going around that is by messaging with them and/or getting them to click an IP logger link.

Xbox user here, toyed with the new XB1. You can do lots, actually. Traffic manipulation(slowing down network, dropping certain packets, injecting packets), IP gathering (on certain games), and even being able to shut people's consoles off remotely. I was toying around with a network fuzzer against my xbox once and my xbox unexpectedly shut off. So I'm sure with the right spoofing of IP, etc. you could remotely shut people's console off.

Grand Theft Auto V: Online is the best place to get IP addresses to target. Use Wireshark, connect your computer to your xbox via ethernet, and bridge ethernet to either another ethernet or a wireless adapter. This lets you MitM the xbox with your computer, allowing full control over the packets going to it.

You can also log IP's, probably best with a python/scapy script.

Personally, I prefer using Nmap against IP's of targets I find, then any open ports I usually run Metasploit against to gain access to their network.

Eventually you meet someone with a vulnerable Cisco router.

my friend a couple days ago got booted offline from talking shit on xbox, id assume he used Wireshark, im not big on it so im not sure though

I think it's a bit more difficult on Xbox One with all the dedicated servers and such.

ThisBearScat - August 23, 2019, 8:39 am it depends on the game. some games are dedicated servers so you cant. some are p2p to save money on servers so that makes it easy with Wireshark. I seen an article the other day where somebody had scamed to the top of Mortal Combat 11 tables (has prize money) by getting his opponents IP with Wireshark and then DDOS'ing them. The game would then think the other person had left and give him the victory. As I say this is recent so it is definitely still possible just depends if the game uses peer 2 peer or dedicated server.

Just go to a resolver if not found on resolver then two things y its not one is that they just dont have it registered yet or two a modded account

Armani24 - August 24, 2019, 8:08 pm

its possible still, get Cain and Abel and look at an old video on youtube for the setup. Also can use Wireshark if u ethernet, all u do is invite victim to party and watch the IP pop up

Basic - August 24, 2019, 8:09 pm

just ping it using the game he plays

Ping. GTA.xboxusername on port 80

fireeee - August 26, 2019, 4:20 am cain and abel lmaooo good times

Quite easy actually. There is an app you can use called Cain and Abel. Its what I use nowadays to find anybodys IP. It can track anybodys ip thats connected to your xbox. (Via video game or the easiest way, xbox party) You can find many youtube videos on it and you will find out how to do it easily. If you need anything else, contact me via discord Darnyx#8183 or via my hackerforum acc

You can use LANC

Join the xbox party on your computer via xbox app, just click start pulling and you get their IP's very simple to use

Moneybeenlong - September 5, 2019, 11:27 am

Don't think it is able to do this
