Thread: No ability to change username on mobile?

xLukey - August 29, 2019, 3:20 am

I rarely ever have PC access and therefore only use my phone for HackForums. I know the Change Username feature is usually located in the User CP however when I access the User CP from my mobile I've slim to none options on there (ie any of my upgraded benefits).

Am I doing something wrong or are these features located elsewhere when using the site on mobile?

I just want to make a slight alteration to my username, thanks:)

I feel that HF on mobile really isn't very accessible. Like I don't know what the tabs are without pressing them, nothing seems like it's laid out for mobile.

Yeah I agree mate, it's unfortunate because I do feel like I'm missing out on my benefits a bit by not being to fully access them:(

Actually, can anyone link me to the change username page please? @HF.Psych

Desktop mode will allow you to access the settings

For anyone wondering I managed to solve this problem, I simply had to turn my phone horizontal while on the User CP to access all the options. Thank you all for your replies, closing this thread now!

Just click the hamburger menu in the top right corner when viewing UserCP and all of the normal sidebar options will be there.

It's definitely not easy to have a full desktop website with dozens of links then have them display well on mobile. But I think we've done a good job. A few clicks on hamburger menu to the page you should be on (user control panel) and you'll find everything you need. Mainly we've really kept it all as reasonable as possible. Very little can be improved. There will always be links you'll want to find which might require a few clicks to locate.
