

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [Spoofing location in chrome for \[BRAND NAME REMOVED\]](#)

donnarled - September 1, 2019, 9:39 am

I have been using development tools in chrome to spoof GPS coordinates. This let's me see profiles at the location I choose, but apparently they can't see me. It could be that there are just no likes yet, but very unlikely at this point.

I tried connecting laptop win LAN cable and disabling WIFI. I haven't let this test run for long, but so far no change.

Anyone with insight on how my spoof could be detected (partly) by [BRAND NAME REMOVED]? Or how I can do it differently?

BTC - September 1, 2019, 9:42 am

Try using android emulator with a GPS spoofing app. I use my actual android phone with a gps spoofing app, works just fine.

Also a VPN from the same location.

indraz.arrow - September 1, 2019, 10:33 am

(Sep 1, 2019 09:42 AM)BTC Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Try using android emulator with a GPS spoofing app. I use my actual android phone with a gps spoofing app, works just fine.

Also a VPN from the same location.

Yes, if I would recommend an app I would suggest this one :

<https://play.google.com/store/apps/details?id=com.lexa.fakegps&hl=en>

Have a nice one buddy

donnarled - September 1, 2019, 11:36 am

(Sep 1, 2019 10:33 AM)indraz.arrow Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yes, if I would recommend an app I would suggest this one

Have a nice one buddy

I have tried this exact app on my android phone, but not with an android emulator. Any suggestions to where to best emulate android and run [BRAND NAME REMOVED]?

(Sep 1, 2019 09:42 AM)BTC Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Try using android emulator with a GPS spoofing app. I use my actual android phone with a gps spoofing app, works just fine.

Also a VPN from the same location.

When I have tried this it hasn't worked. As far as I know, [BRAND NAME REMOVED] requires both GPS enabled and google's separate location services - possible locating by WIFI etc.

So I'm very interested in finding a simple simulator that I can have up and running without too much hassle.

thebigblood092 - September 1, 2019, 1:30 pm

[BRAND NAME REMOVED] ghosts your profile

for multiple reasons usually changing your location too fast logging in from desktop and cpu liking too many people

they just do shit like that it really sucks
if u have an obvious attractive girls pics up with no likes u know its being ghosted an attractive girl can get 100 likes in an hour from girls and like 400 in an hour from guys in a high traffic city id recommend just deleting your profile and starting over or making a new one with different login credentials

easiest way is bluestacks with a gps spoofer or just getting it on your regular phone and getting [BRAND NAME REMOVED] gold allows u to move around but they also ghost u if u move around too often

u can swipe 1000 times u wont get 1 match and your messages wont go through but they will say they will when ghosted happened to me a few times u can either wait for a while and hope it comes back

or just make a new one donnarled - September 1, 2019, 3:33 pm

Very interesting input thebigblood!

And it explains a few things, and makes sense since I have changed back and forth between real location and spoofed location.

So for now I'll try to keep the app closed on my devices and see if in a day's time maybe the ghosting changes.

24+ hours since I have had the [BRAND NAME REMOVED] app running on devices and 16 hours
since I started running in simulation environment.

No change so far.

Would prefer to continue on this account, rather than start over. But then again, if that could take weeks without any info...