Thread: Receiving Paypal Payments

My paypal got limited last night saying I broke rules or something. Not looking for help on limitation though. I currently sell stuff on shoppy and other places like it and paypal is/was my main source of payments/income.

Is there something I can do to somehow still accept paypal with an account? Like, a site that let's me sell stuff and the funds go into a site based account, from which I can then withdraw to bank/cc/etc?

If not, are there alternative solutions or suggestions you'd suggest?

You cannot use same bank account or credit/debit card anymore which you used on that account. You should try Stripe. Why don't you just accept crypto?

Here are the 3 things you could do

Get your bank to send you a new card.

Open a new bank account

Use a prepaid card or virtual cc

Why don't you just accept crypto? As I said, PayPal is my biggest income. I do accept bitcoin and Stripe also. But that's not relevant.

How does this allow customers to buy with paypal & me not need an account?
