So there's a gym just outside my house - I want all the free pokeballs for my wife but it's like just out of range.

I don't use a sim card in my phone so I have to keep it connected to WiFi anyway - decided to put it in a plastic container with a battery pack - then remote control it from my desktop over WiFi with it at the corner of my property.

What if someone jacks the container? Or is it in the backyard?

Front yard with a 7ft fence. It's down on the ground in the corner. Nobody would be able to see it without looking - then they'd have to jump the fence for a plastic container that you can't see inside anyway.

Same technique I use for WPS hacking or MiTM attacks. Leave a connection buried outside their house.

That makes sense I guess. I don't play Pokemon but if I did I'm sure I would be as dedicated and committed to it as you. ?

And here I thought that no one played Pokemon GO anymore. ;3;

That's a smart idea. If you didn't have that fence you talked about then I would say you're crazy; but no, you're a genius ?
