

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: A small gesture

SIM-1729678 - September 6, 2019, 12:10 am

So, this morning I was driving to work and I gave someone right of way where they don't have any. Where I live, it's very normal and polite to put your hand up as a 'thank you' gesture. It always makes me happy for some reason to see people actually thanking you for something you did, even if it's something very small like giving right of way.

Sadly it has come to my attention that people don't even bother 'thanking' you anymore. I feel like those people think it's normal for other people to be nice to them or something...

How do you feel about this? and do you recognize yourself in a similar situation?

Eagle 95 - September 6, 2019, 12:25 am

I always turn on hazard lights as a thank you note. Not really a hand type of guy. :P

SUI-3183372 - September 6, 2019, 12:28 am

Everytime I'm nice to someone while I drive it backfires. Everyone else sucks, fuckem.

SIM-1729678 - September 6, 2019, 12:29 am

(Sep 6, 2019 12:25 AM)Eagle 95 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I always turn on hazard lights as a thank you note. Not really a hand type of guy. :P

I always feel like the hazard lights could give too much of a "watch out" or "Warning" feel.

Crimin4L - September 6, 2019, 12:35 am

Happens everyday with me in jersey, but if they want to be ignorant i'll be an asshole about it; For instance: I hold the door for people all the time and sometimes i don't even get a thank you, so i'll just say real loud and ignorant "Your Welcome" and some people look back at me like i'm in the wrong. Like come tf back over here so i can slam this door in your face you pos

SIM-1729678 - September 6, 2019, 12:40 am

(Sep 6, 2019 12:35 AM)Crimin4L Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Happens everyday with me in jersey, but if they want to be ignorant i'll be an asshole about it; For instance: I hold the door for people all the time and sometimes i don't even get a thank you, so i'll just say real loud and ignorant "Your Welcome" and some people look back at me like i'm in the wrong. Like come tf back over here so i can slam this door in your face you pos

"Like come tf back over here so I can slam this door in your face you pos" LMFAO ? ?

One - September 6, 2019, 12:42 am

Some people just don't know how to appreciate little things,Its sad but thats the world we live in

Meterpreter - September 6, 2019, 1:01 am

I always give a wave.... I don't care if you're next to me or behind me, I will break my back just to acknowledge their niceness.

I expect the same, but it doesn't get to me if they don't wave. I generally just assume they're grateful, especially if there is a massive line of cars.

Crimin4L - September 6, 2019, 1:01 am

(Sep 6, 2019 12:40 AM)ScreemS Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) "Like come tf back over here so I can slam this door in your face you pos" LMFAO ? ?

Imfao, RS tho people are so rude it disgusts me. Like you wanna test me? I can be 10x worse than you buddy; wrong move.

DNA - September 6, 2019, 1:02 am

Don't come to Australia if you want polite conversation Imao

Cooligan - September 6, 2019, 1:05 am

(Sep 6, 2019 12:25 AM)Eagle 95 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I always turn on hazard lights as a thank you note. Not really a hand type of guy. :P

YES! My buddy told me about this years ago on the highway when he was thanking an 18 wheeler for letting him in.

Ever since, I've used it to say thank you once I'm in front of someone, and if I'm behind, I'll just quickly flash my headlights.

It's actually awesome seeing someone flash their hazards back at you, it's like "oh you know that too?!" ?

(Sep 6, 2019 12:29 AM)ScreemS Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I always feel like the hazard lights could give too much of a "watch out" or "Warning" feel.

That's why you only allow them to flash twice for the universal "thank-you". ?

Same with flashing your headlights, once or twice is all you need to let someone know you're thankful.

SIM-1729678 - September 6, 2019, 1:35 am

(Sep 6, 2019 01:05 AM)Cooligan Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) YES! My buddy told me about this years ago on the highway when he was thanking an 18 wheeler for letting him in.

Ever since, I've used it to say thank you once I'm in front of someone, and if I'm behind, I'll just quickly flash my headlights.

It's actually awesome seeing someone flash their hazards back at you, it's like "oh you know that too?!" ?

That's why you only allow them to flash twice for the universal "thank-you". ?

Same with flashing your headlights, once or twice is all you need to let someone know you're thankful.

When learning to drive here, they tell you to never do that. Of course, ever knows that it's a "warning" or "Thank you". But it's not allowed here.

Cooligan - September 6, 2019, 1:38 am

(Sep 6, 2019 01:35 AM)ScreemS Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) When learning to drive here, they tell you to never do that. Of course, ever knows that it's a "warning" or "Thank you". But it's not allowed here.

Yeah I hear you.

A lot of things are "not allowed" here on the roads in the US, however most of us just disregard them lol.

Things like speed limits, no lane switching zones, "30mph because you're in a residential but you're clearly on a 4 lane mini highway with 2 houses on either side that are fenced in", yeah we typically disregard those. ?

SIM-1729678 - September 6, 2019, 1:53 am

(Sep 6, 2019 01:38 AM)Cooligan Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yeah I hear you.

A lot of things are "not allowed" here on the roads in the US, however most of us just disregard them lol.

Things like speed limits, no lane switching zones, "30mph because you're in a residential but you're clearly on a 4 lane mini highway with 2 houses on either side that are fenced in", yeah we typically disregard those. ?

? ?

When I was driving around in the US, I really had to adjust to the driving style. Took me a few days.

Rigel - September 6, 2019, 5:19 pm

I make a point to be appreciative simply because I'm not appreciated enough. And it sucks to feel that way so I make an extra effort to say thank you so other don't.

Cooligan - September 7, 2019, 8:38 am

(Sep 6, 2019 01:53 AM)ScreemS Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) ? ?

When I was driving around in the US, I really had to adjust to the driving style. Took me a few days. Lol I believe you. We drive like assholes here, and we don't really say "pardon me" or anything like that. More so " 'scuse me " or just "get the fuck out of my way you dumb cunt". ?

edit: Ffs child friendly words -_-