

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Looking for a botnet to DNS HiJack - Still possible?

Mystoh - September 14, 2019, 7:37 am

Hello,

As per thread title, I wanted to know if this was still possible in 2019. I am a large affiliate and was curious what would happen if I launched a separate side campaign and the only source of traffic will be from a medium-sized botnet being DNS Hijacked to redirect www.Amaz.com to an affiliate link redirect of that website. The user will not notice they have redirected to an affiliate link before www.Amaz.com has loaded, therefore providing commissions for any purchases made from said user.

Is this type of DNS HiJacking with a botnet still possible? Does anyone know a trusted provider for this service? And does anyone have any experience with the affiliate networks while utilizing this type of method?

Thanks in advance HF

FREETIME - September 14, 2019, 10:09 am

(Sep 14, 2019 07:37 AM)Mystoh Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hello,

As per thread title, I wanted to know if this was still possible in 2019. I am a large affiliate and was curious what would happen if I launched a separate side campaign and the only source of traffic will be from a medium-sized botnet being DNS Hijacked to redirect www.Amaz.com to an affiliate link redirect of that website. The user will not notice they have redirected to an affiliate link before www.Amaz.com has loaded, therefore providing commissions for any purchases made from said user.

Is this type of DNS HiJacking with a botnet still possible? Does anyone know a trusted provider for this service? And does anyone have any experience with the affiliate networks while utilizing this type of method?

Thanks in advance HF

Msg me more details ? ? ?

AnonFawkes - September 14, 2019, 10:39 am

Amazon can detect this, its been tried since years ago.

Freak Anon - September 16, 2019, 9:24 am

Add me on xmpp Freak @420blaze.it

Tu?†?ø - September 18, 2019, 8:20 am

Ofcourse, DNS spoofing is still a thing in 2019 and will be contineously. I can provide you with seller for bot. Sent you a PM.

Nenny - September 27, 2019, 11:57 am

(Sep 18, 2019 08:20 AM)M. Hetzenauer Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Ofcourse, DNS spoofing is still a thing in 2019 and will be contineously. I can provide you with seller for bot. Sent you a PM.Can you hit me up with a pm aswell?

Thank you and regards ?