Yahoo was sued for $117m over the 2014 data breach if anyone had a Yahoo account between 2012-2016 you can fill the form out below and recieve $100-$300 (maybe more depending on the amount of users who sign up) You can only get the settlement money if you fill the forms out.

You can also get free credit monitoring for 2 years if you don't want the cash settlement.

Although 117m is a huge amount of money, although hardly a dent in the grand scheme of things.

It might be one check per address, not sure you can claim multiple unless you can prove you are multiple people in a way from what I know about class actions.

Yeah make sure you claim on a different ip for each one to prevent them flagging them individually if your details aren't the same across them.

Gotta maximize then profits.
