

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Anyone who lives near train station?

duck - September 21, 2019, 9:15 pm

The city I live in is crazy, during the night, I can hear trains and the train station itself. I'm not sure how far is it, but I can tell it's at least 1.5km far (0.93 miles). Around that.

I usually don't hear what they say but I can just hear the siren that goes before they say something and I can hear trains passing by.

Anyone here that lives near train station and is going crazy because of that?

Also i'm not schizo, it's not only me who hears this and you can track what train passes by and when.

Rsynced - September 21, 2019, 9:39 pm

I live by the train tracks and hear the train bell and horn from time to time. I don't go crazy from it. If it was all the time it would kinda suck for sure. Also we live under a direct flight path to the airport so we get lots of loud air traffic daily, when the military crafts pass by that shit is loud as hell, once had a chopper come over our house really close , it was crazy.

Prettykitty - September 21, 2019, 9:43 pm

No trains where I'm at. I mean not the ones with a ground station.. This kind of reminds me of the movie se7en in the scene where they get interrupted by trains every 15 minutes.

TheRecklessZebra - September 21, 2019, 11:20 pm

I live right by tracks and let me tell i hear the damn train all the time, it doesn't drive me crazy but every time they blow their horn i feel like someone is on the tracks.

Linux X - September 22, 2019, 12:00 am

Yeah i hear them at 1-2am. It shitty but however you get to use it.

pms - September 22, 2019, 12:04 am

I live pretty near one and its so annoying sometimes. Some times it wakes me up in the night.

.jpg.exe - September 22, 2019, 2:05 am

I can imagine this is annoying OP. I wouldn't take any notice of it though

BTC BTC BTC - September 22, 2019, 2:13 am

Probably best to buy ear buds when you sleep. Maybe change ur windows out to triple glazing to block noise. Don't know what else

4rch4ngel - September 22, 2019, 2:15 am

I live near some train tracks, I can hear their horns blow from my house but thankfully that's about it, gotten used to it and the nuclear sirens that go off monthly (I often sleep through them)

Rsynced - September 22, 2019, 2:25 am

(Sep 22, 2019 02:15 AM)4rch4ngel Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I live near some train tracks, I can hear their horns blow from my house but thankfully that's about it, gotten used to it and the nuclear sirens that go off monthly (I often sleep through them)

Nuclear sirens ? Monthly test right ?

4rch4ngel - September 22, 2019, 2:33 am

(Sep 22, 2019 02:25 AM)Rsynced Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Nuclear sirens ? Monthly test right ?

Yup thankfully, we live near a power plant so they test the sirens the first Wednesday of every month. I think we've only ever had one serious evacuation and I was in summer care, roughly 6-7 years of age. We all had to load up on a bus and evacuate, but thankfully nothing came of it.

Vyrkfrir - September 22, 2019, 2:47 am

Must be old infrastructure that's loud, I have commercial lines about 700m away (run from a minesite a couple thousand km away hauling iron ore/workers), and I don't hear a peep. Honestly, except for during the day when on smoko (work is right beside the tracks), the distance dissipates the sound.

Rsynced - September 22, 2019, 2:49 am

(Sep 22, 2019 02:33 AM)4rch4ngel Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Yup thankfully, we live near a power plant so they test the sirens the first Wednesday of every month. I think we've only ever had one serious evacuation and I was in summer care, roughly 6-7 years of age. We all had to load up on a bus and evacuate, but thankfully nothing came of it.

Dude that shit beats the OP in my opinion. That would drive me crazy.

One - September 22, 2019, 2:58 am

I don't really live near a train station but got one close to my city

4rch4ngel - September 22, 2019, 3:08 am

(Sep 22, 2019 02:49 AM)Rsynced Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Dude that Clay Davis beats the OP in my opinion. That would drive me crazy.

To be fair, the OP has to deal with their sht daily, our nuclear sirens are once a month and since I grew up around here, they used to go off when we would be outside playing on the playground, imagine all us little kids freezing and imitating the noise the siren made until it went off ? I missed it a lot, to be honest, I always get super excited when I'm actually awake to hear it! It was weird actually because I didn't realize how much I missed it until I came back to Tennessee after those 6 years in Florida and year in Cali, it brightened everything up to hear it go off again.

Rsynced - September 22, 2019, 3:11 am

(Sep 22, 2019 03:08 AM)4rch4ngel Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) To be fair, the OP has to deal with their sht daily, our nuclear sirens are once a month and since I grew up around here, they used to go off when we would be outside playing on the playground, imagine all us little kids freezing and imitating the noise the siren made until it went off ? I missed it a lot, to be honest, I always get super excited when I'm actually awake to hear it! It was weird actually because I didn't realize how much I missed it until I came back to Tennessee after those 6 years in Florida and year in Cali, it brightened everything up to hear it go off again.

Now that I think about it your right, he has to hear it daily.

SIM-403479 - September 22, 2019, 5:09 am

Closest one is probably a mile away so I don't hear anything.

N - September 22, 2019, 5:20 am

I never lived close to train tracks or a station, but I did once live right over a airplane landing flight path.

That shit was annoying as hell, but after a while you get use to it and becomes a norm.

UnpredictableLegacy - September 22, 2019, 5:51 am

No trains here. Is it that bad ?

duck - September 22, 2019, 9:20 am

(Sep 22, 2019 12:04 AM)E.T Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I live pretty near one and its so annoying sometimes. Some times it wakes me up in the night.

Right, in my location you can't really hear it unless you open window and listen but i still find it odd because how far is it.

(Sep 22, 2019 02:15 AM)4rch4ngel Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I live near some train tracks, I can hear their horns blow from my house but thankfully that's about it, gotten used to it and the nuclear sirens that go off monthly (I often sleep through them)

Yeah we got them too, they always start loudly beeping but it doesn't happen during the night.

Usually around 10am to 1pm.

Krepto - September 22, 2019, 9:27 am

I'm pretty fortunate to leave nowhere near the station. However I do get loads of drunken chavs around at night which are annoying.

SneakyHF - September 22, 2019, 9:31 am yeah i do, but lived in that neighborhood for ages, now i'm used to that sound. it's not bothering me at all anymore

4rch4ngel - September 22, 2019, 12:45 pm

(Sep 22, 2019 09:20 AM)duck Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Right, in my location you can't really hear it unless you open window and listen but i still find it odd because how far is it.

Yeah we got them too, they always start loudly beeping but it doesn't happen during the night.

Usually around 10am to 1pm.

Ugh I don't like the idea of them beeping, ours just sound like the ones in war documentaries. What are yours for?

Rigel - September 22, 2019, 1:52 pm

My partner does and so it's annoying to hear in the morning.

MavenGradle - September 22, 2019, 1:56 pm

I find the sound of trains to be quite calming actually. When you live in a big city, it kind of beats the cars honking by a mile. Cars are just annoying.

dragonHarem - September 22, 2019, 3:31 pm

(Sep 21, 2019 09:15 PM)duck Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The city I live in is crazy, during the night, I can hear trains and the train station itself.

I'm not sure how far is it, but I can tell it's at least 1.5km far (0.93 miles). Around that.

I usually don't hear what they say but I can just hear the siren that goes before they say something and I can hear trains passing by.

Anyone here that lives near train station and is going crazy because of that?

Also i'm not schizo, it's not only me who hears this and you can track what train passes by and when.

U cant hear talking 1km away you schizoid

duck - September 22, 2019, 4:24 pm

(Sep 22, 2019 03:31 PM)dragonHarem Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) U cant hear talking 1km away you schizoid ok! but you too, you're my little dragon.