Can anyone make Wifi Jammer want to block it in my hostel!!

webdev77 - September 22, 2019, 1:50 pm

It is possible but you are going to likely be visited by local law enforcement if you attempt to do so. It's illegal to jam communications.

<https://5.imimg.com/data5/KV/WF/MY-7210256/handheld-3g-4g-all-phone-signal-wifi-jammer-500x500.jpg> i have one and it's perfectly worked.

SOS777 - September 26, 2019, 7:32 pm

You can easily turn your pc into a jamming device, just need the right tools. I will give you a heads up : use kali ..

I cry blood - September 26, 2019, 8:07 pm

Look into WiFi Deauthentication attacks. Imo, its way easier, and you can make it target specific. You dont need and special software/hardware. You just do it all through a terminal.

Doubt this to be easy because how often does it happen? Never heard such things happening.

SIM-888979 - September 26, 2019, 8:24 pm

Very illegal, please don't do this.

I have wifi deauthentication devices. I wouldn't quite call them 'jammers' being that deauth was implemented and explained in the 802.11 protocol documents.

If you need further assistance, feel free to reach out.

kane2026 - September 28, 2019, 10:01 am

Deauth attack is probably the most effective. The company I work for regularly has problems with it, one of the biggest flaws with WPA/WPA2. And yes, you can use Kali Linux for. If you really want to do this I suggest you find a method that ensures you are not around, such as a raspberry pi + alfa antenna.

Zcool2019 - November 2, 2019, 1:56 pm

you can build a deauth detector using an esp32/esp8266. I built one which can be used to track down the offender.. it detects a large amount of deauth packets and shows the mac of the client sending and the signal strength.. you can run it off a battery then walk closer to find the stronger signal..

Would you mind sharing a guide on how to create this?

google it, lots on the web. no you wont go jail - if you ensure they dont find it! such a low level crime.

bwistheone - December 11, 2019, 4:08 pm

BTW: if you want to actually "jam" wifi (as opposed to a deauth attack). you can buy a board like this.. Interfering with any RF transmission is a serious crime and is heavily enforced. All levels of law enforcement take this very seriously. If you're doing this for a long period of time in one spot, don't be too shocked if it comes back to bite you pretty quickly.
