You want to learn or you want to be spoon fed like a baby?

Sorry to sound harsh but comeon mate, there is endless information just go and start digging.

death vader - September 28, 2019, 9:11 pm

I may be mistaken in where he is coming from... but there's some of us

Let's switch to me. I would like working remotely online ... It's just that I've landed up in a situation where Im jack of all master of none. And the traditional academia driven pathways have passed me by while I was busy getting wasted. Now things have turned around for me internally but I am lagging. So if OP's case is similar I can relate...

Meanwhile, I'm not gonna wait around for a handout or a magic pot to fall down on my lap.... So I've decided to build a foundation of Computer Science. I'm starting with Networking, prepping for a CCNA come Dec '19. At a slightly slower place Im learning python and beyond, Cryptography, Machine Learning, Computational Neuroscience for the future. I'd just like the foot in the door process to be a little easier somehow. But hey not complaining...

Go give some bj's locally and earn cash, no investment needed.

Instamixes - September 30, 2019, 4:11 am

You need skills to earn online or offline. Earning money online is not hard at all. First, do not think about earning money and try to improve your skills. If you have skills that can be helpful for someone, you can earn online. Skills like Coding, Graphics, Vidoe editing, and ethical hacking and many others. So learn skills first

Xavier - September 30, 2019, 6:31 am

Are you interested in blackhat?

Veninu - September 30, 2019, 6:39 am

If you have skills in how website security works, as in payment gateways, bank transfers, etc. Then you could try to get into carding.

GENT - October 3, 2019, 8:59 am

I think that you really need to have some set of skills before you can make money. At least some basics of something that is needed.

It doesn't matter if it is online from home or a 9-5 job or any kind of profession no matter the working hours.

You need to invest at least some time find out what interests you and what you have to learn to make money.

It isn't a direct advice what to start doing, but it is a good frame on what you can expect even from online jobs. In the beginning, no matter what you do you need to be prepared for trials and tribulations before you start being productive.

Or as one guy previously mentioned in this thread: Go give some bj's locally and earn cash, no investment needed.

"This type of money making" is a very broad term. Please clarify.

1. For doing hacking ethically for companies go talk with a lawyer specializing in cyber law first and get a contract written up.

2. There are contractor websites online for hacking. I dont use my real name and if the jobs legit for a business pay me all day.

3. Offer a fee offline as a consultant. To talk to me about IT security concerns or even do a site survey for that place without a pen test or vulnerability assessments an automatic $300 per hour charge. Its expensive for small to medium business probably. But my certs and qualifications I busted my ass to achieve say that's a pretty cheap price lol don't like it kick rocks.

4. Bug bounties galore. Just search online lol.

Make money online without prison time?

Well, if you know some basic PHP and just hack into some wordpress themes or plugins, you can insert a link to your own website. Do a few hundred and watch your site go up in the SERPs.

I just heard of a 0-day this morning, themerex, I think it was called and supposedly has 44,000 installs.

"ThemeREX Addons - Remote Code Execution (0day, Being Exploited)"

Find some of them and have fun. It is illegal of course, but it's a small crime compared to carding and underage girls, etc. etc.

I did that sort of thing years ago when I was selling viagra online. If I did it again, I would NOT sell viagra though - my domain was locked by enom for that.

Now I have legit biz up and running.

(Feb 18, 2020 06:42 PM)FlySwatter Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Make money online without prison time?

Unless you are netting a reasonably suspicious amount of money and not "washing" it properly, the chances of you going to prison for white collar crimes online is extremely low. If you are balling out like Michael Hogue was though and running your niche so blatantly on surface web hacking boards, not properly laundering, not using a VPN, having snitches as developers, and attracting unnecessary attention to yourself on a 24/7 basis, you might be looking at some prison time if you aren't careful about anonymity.

Other than that, the FBI has bigger fish to fry in real life such as drug traffickers (shuddered when I said that >.>) these days unless you very far on the Blackhat side with deep web connections and are profiting quite a lot to where red flags are raised.

Being a Botmaster is one of the best ways to make A LOT of money online if you know what you're doing. But again, very risky and I would actually put that in my book of people the FBI would like to fry depending on how many connections one has.

Also don't get any bright ideas about creating such a network because unless you have around 4-5 thousand dollars off rip, or you are willing to wait 3-4 years to obtain slaves and machines, it is literally a very tiresome and excruciatingly boring process.

Instead, from a perfectly legal standpoint you can offer services to people, get involved with graphic design, server reselling (for those who want to host games and even create their own botnet, and so many other things. I am too tired to think right now. The sky is the limit but you need to learn to think for yourself.
