Thread: HF Sports Book Now Open

Omniscient - October 1, 2019, 11:29 am

<https://hackforums.net/sportsbook.php>

The HF Bytes Sportsbook is now open. For those that don't know what that is. It is a new feature that you can bet on sports using your HF Bytes. Immediately we have open NFL lines.

Because we are using an API (paid btw) with limited calls we will update the odds every other hour and tiered with the results every other hour. So at 1pm for example you can see odds/lines update and then at 2pm the results get updated.

If you have any questions to how Sports Book works please just ask.

btw, I am making it official also that on HF October 1st is "HF Betting Day". I will be announcing that in a separate thread.

Lavish Living - October 1, 2019, 11:32 am

Damn that's pretty cool.

Time to make some bank. Someone start up an official HF Sportsbook subgroup within Gamblers.

Thanks

Nice update and great new bytes addition.

On the betting pages though exists the ability to see what your payout will be for however much you want to wager before you ever place a bet.

Los Angeles Rams (+106) @ Seattle Seahawks (-124)

should say 10-3-2019 as game is on thursday not friday

Yoo that's actually dope. Great new feature. Should add an option to where you can make it Asian odds as well.

The time is relative to whatever your HF time zone is set as. Is your time zone on HF accurate to where you are located?

ya figured that was the case but timezone for me

Timezone: America/Los_Angeles (UTC-7)

so has some issue but its fine. im aware when games start. will be cool to use this week

HOMODIN - October 1, 2019, 11:45 am

That's a nice and cool addition, would be nice with bets related to the olympics and other world wide sport events too ;)

vad0x - October 1, 2019, 11:48 am

Omni you should implement a feature that if a user loses x amount of bytes they cant bet anymore. Or your gonna have ppl losing a shit ton and becoming addicted gamblers and hopefully those aren't your intentions. Other than that i think this is a pretty sweet idea especially once NBA starts back up again.

Hey not a big deal, however when you're on the "SportsBook" it says "unknown location" you going to change that or is it no biggie?

Is there an official way to purchase bytes without the need of purchasing an award? Will there be one, because I'm pretty sure there'd be a lot of people interested in 'testing' this new feature extensively.

NFL is a simple beta test sport since it has limited games per week. Maybe in about 2-3 weeks we'll be adding more.

This is likely to be our sport league choices we will add... NFL, NCAAF, NCAAB, NBA, MLB, NHL, MMA (UFC), Golf.

No FIFA/Football related things? UCL, UEL, World Cup, etc...

>World Cup: It's every 4 years, the next one is in 2022 in Qatar, and the qualifications are still in process for every continent. So you can hold on for now.

> UEFA Champions League: Best current option, a yearly league with the top clubs of every country in Europe. Also the most popular and frequent championship in Football.

>English Championship, English FA Cup, Scottish Premiership: Meh Not that popular.

>Premier League: Good option.

Other leagues that could be added alongside Premier League and MLS are: Serie A (Italian League), La Liga (Spain), Ligue 1 (France), Bundesliga (German). These are the top leagues that come to mind right now.

If you have the full list for Football, I can scan through it.

I don't believe our API supports odds for in-game live betting. Would also require a much higher API limit (every minute at least) which is a more costly fee. I really don't think for our purpose we need live betting.

nope haha

the more negative they are, the more likely/expected they are to win.

So, the rams are LESS likely to win, hence why you get paid more per bytes than if you bet on the seahawks to win.

Not as many Indians as you'd think. It's only about 6%. We are almost 40% USA with 8% UK, then it's India near 6%.

And our API doesn't support Rugby or Cricket.

I probabky sounded racist as shit, but I grew up with a bunch of Indian kids who were absolutely brilliant at cricket, despite the fact they were skinny kids fuck they could bowl fast.
Same goes though when we played rugby. I was always chosen first because I'm a kiwi and its our thing, even though I'm the skinniest cunt on the field. It's funny as I play well but fuck me I start flipping when I get tackled. To be fair though, the one dude who was untouchable as fuck at rugby was this Asian dude named Gavin. The Goliath. I can't make this up, 1 of the people from that class now play for the state rugby team in stadiums, the WHOLE class could not stop, slow, or down this fulla. Was impressive, he was big but had complete control.

Australia is a weirdly multicultural place to grow up ?

That's a shame, even though rugby seasons basically dun, I suppose cricket would be really hard to integrate into the API.

Oh come on... You have to add UEFA CL. I rather have UEFA CL than PL tbh. Much better matches as it involves the best teams of every European country. It's the "Main Competition" for Football clubs.

Country based, yes PL is the current popular league. However, it's not the main event. The champion and the 3 teams below the champion in standing of every country's league qualify to the UEFA CL. I would say the closest comparison would be maybe the SuperBowl I think.

Anyways, Let's just see how it goes with PL before adding other leagues.

It's still in the Group stages [Week 4 out of 6] which involves 32 teams separated in 8 groups, top 2 of every group goes to Top 16 ->top8 ->semi finals ->finals

We plan on making a poll with the different leagues to see which ones to add.

World Cup, MLS, Premier League, UEFA Champions League, English Championship, France Ligue 1, German Bundesliga, Scottish Premiership, English FA Cup, Spanish La Liga, Copa del Rey, Mexican Liga MX

That's the choices we have.

World Cup sucks cause its only for a month every 4 years, so it wouldnt make any sense from those country leagues, im sure Premier League gonna win it (it has 38 rounds, 10 games per round each weekend)

from continental leagues Champions league all the way

World Cup is every 4 years, so you can put that on the side for now. Add Serie A (Italian league) in the list.

You probably won't like this but... It's very weird to only have money lines and O/U available and leave out point spreads. I say do all three.

It can be argued that point spreads are the most popular next to over under.

today there were 6 English Premier league games and i havent seen anyone in the sports book

Omniscient - December 4, 2019, 12:23 pm

Quote: It can be argued that point spreads are the most popular next to over under.

I wonder if you realize they are more popular because it edges to the house. It's better for players to have money lines. If you have to worry about a spread your team even if they are the favorites by a wide-margin can still lose.

Example is Patriots are -220 to win which is a heavy favorite. But if you want spread they are -9 points. If they win by 7 points, you lose the bet.

As a regular sportsbook player I'd much rather have money line than spread. And sometimes books don't give you money line options. Ever wonder why that is? Because they have less edge.

I understand the comfort level of familiarity though. If you are used to losing at Sportsbook then it's likely you want spreads.

Oh I'm most definitely a losing sports better lol!

Just have known some friends that ran sports books and some of the most popular ways cappers would bet are the spreads. That with the combos of Money lines, over/under provides good ways to find edges in games and hedge one way or the other.

Up to you.. But I found it strange that ONLY money lines were available.

Before this all started I used the Sportsbook on a daily basis, so much to the point that I got fairly good at picking winners that I was going to bring my betting service here, however that never happened for obvious reason. Upsets are sometimes my favorite bets to make not only because the payout is obviously better, but more so because most of the time I'm going off of a gut feeling I'm having at said time so it's sort of a rush waiting to see whether I was right or not.

No better feeling than going against all the experts and going with your gut and then winning. This has happened numerous times where quite literally everyone was saying team A was going to win, and I bet team B and banked off of it.

World Cup, UEFA Champions League, English Championship, English FA Cup, Scottish Premiership, MLS, and Premier League

Which do you think we should add?

I wanted to mention this again before the new season start. Can we add more Football (soccer) competitions?

Premier League is popular, but it's not the only popular league, nor does it have the majority of the best European clubs nor best players, it's not even the most popular European competition.

What i would like to suggest to add the following:

1. UEFA Champions League - It's basically the most known competition commonly watched by most if not all Football fans as only the best top clubs of each European leagues play in it.

The group stages start in September (source)

2. Italian League (Serie A) - Starts August 21st

3. Spanish League (LaLiga) - Starts August 13

And if you want to add 2 more you can add: German League (Bundesliga) and French League (Ligue 1)

These are basically the best yearly Football competitions/leagues.

Another thing, what are the chances of having a betting option for the overall match winner? Current system only counts the normal 90min playtime. That system will work fine in the local league competitions and the Group stages in the UEFA Champions League, but when we reach the knockoff stages in the Campions League, if a match is still a draw in the 90 minute mark, they go to 2 extra half times, and if its still a draw, they go to penalties.

Just a recent example of this happening is the EUROS 2020 which just ended couple weeks ago, both the semi finals and finals went to all the way to penalties to choose a winner.

That's too much work in my opinion. You're getting into special bets. Like predicting scoreline etc.

Only thing I can think of why they removed, for people who don't bet on soccer it would take up 5 whole pages sorting them by sports instead of showing all would do the trick

Meh, not a fan of the soccer leagues. Too many problems with different betting styles and so many games. I think we will keep it as it is.

hmm alright. If you ever change your mind, can you at least add "Serie A"? It's a league which will work fine with the current Win/Draw/Lose options without any issues like extra half times and penalties.

Leagues gonna start in 2-3 weeks.

Can we at least replace 'UK Championship' with 'Serie A'? :(

Championship is basically division 2 of UK league.

That way, we have Premier League (UK's Division 1) and Serie A (Italian Division 1)

With how betting API's (source of odds) work he'll have to purchase an entire new plan to add different leagues.

Actually discovered this not too long ago. I've made some good bets so far.
