Thread: Joker is a Masterpiece

Prince™ - October 2, 2019, 8:09 am

Yes, it got released here in India today and I went onto watch it in theater.

It was pin drop silence for the entire movie while I was so mesmerized by Joaquin Phoenix's acting as Arthur Fleck/ Joker.

The movie is dark, deep, sick, twisted, bold and disturbing. Definitely an overwhelmingly excellent performance by the actor. He'll bag another Oscar for this movie.

10/10 from me.

Smexy - October 3, 2019, 9:22 am

Thanks, now I'm even more hyped for it!

kane2026 - October 5, 2019, 3:59 am

I saw it yesterday evening and I agree with everything Prince said. By the time I was walking home from the cinema I was thoroughly depressed. Joaquin Phoenix did a wonderful job. That said, most people I was with at the cinema hated it. They were all expecting something like The Dark Knight or Suicide Squad. For them the film was too high-brow. Their loss...

duplex - October 5, 2019, 3:59 am

Thank you for this, fuck what the Critics has to say about it.

This movie was phenomenal. Screenplay, Joker's acting skills, it's a slow paced but the actor made it so interesting that it never felt too slow or boring of any sort tbh.

Screw the people who prefer to watch fast paced movies only like Avengers lol.

One - October 5, 2019, 5:08 am

How are people getting depressed over the movie?

Natas - October 5, 2019, 5:13 am

Damn bro your thread got my hyped af.
I will probely just get a boot leg of it.
I dont go out much to theaters but I cant wait to watch it.

Maybe because they feel the character of the movie a bit too much.

Good for you then. ?

BTC - October 5, 2019, 8:52 am

Saw the movie, wasn't too bad.

Definitely a weird movie, thought it would be predictable but a lot of the things I did not see coming.

Director did a good job, actor did a good job. Not in my top 10 list for 2019 or anything like that though.

Seen rambo recently and that movie was cray good IMO.

Some movies relate to one's real life. Which makes us to be depressed/anxious for sometime as a result of that.

That's all normal. ?

True but i wont watch such movies,I might feel sorry for someone but i dont think i can sit and watch a movie put me in depression.

You need to study energy and how they affect our lives,Its essential to only allow positive energy into your life,We may not consider the effects of this negative energies we are allowing into our lives but when we are face with life's situation all those energy will start coming out and we will start visualizing ourselves in bad situations,We are the creators of our realities so we need to know what kind of junks we allow into our subconscious mind

While I agree with your overall sentiment One we cannot always avoid something that might strike a chord. On a sad level I think Joker will do that with many people. If it does, I suppose what we do about such feelings and the circumstances is what is important

Saw it yesterday, although it was better than any 'superhero' film, I was really disappointed with this version of the Joker character. Instead of being clever, or sinister, or having any ties to crime, they cast the character as just some barely functioning psycho addicted to cigarettes who kills his mom, his friend, then a celebrity. The character arc made no sense because the event that transformed the victim into the villain was an act of self defense. The movie would have been just fine without the gotham/joker theme, but I feel like they had the potential to make a much more interesting character and setting.

Perhaps he becomes cunning and a freak after this because remember, he was on 7 different kind of medicine in this movie.

He starts to kill people only after he stops taking them. So yeah. :P

Lindros - October 7, 2019, 10:38 am

I thought it was a good movie. I kind of miss the Heath Ledger joker but Phoenix did a good job!

Rogerslindsey - October 7, 2019, 10:59 am

Is this Joker the same Joker from dark knights joker?

Renowned - October 7, 2019, 2:03 pm

I'm really excited to see this movie, gonna go at the weekend I think.

Yin Yang - October 7, 2019, 6:39 pm

It was a slow movie that was a great character development and Oscar performance of joker.

I'm sure Heath would be proud into how hard the joker role is and the time, effort and devotion it takes.

Azlan1 - October 7, 2019, 10:01 pm

Saw it a couple of days ago and can hands down say I will be rewatching it again. I can agree it is not for everyone especially if you expect it to be like the Marvel movies.

After speaking to a few people who did not like it, I can conclude in my opinion they are disturbed but the fact that Joaquin's Joker seems like a possible reaction to someone "having one bad day" or in his case a few. Although an origin story I loved some of the comic references.

Even if you did not like the film, I think people can appreciate the way Joaquin portrayed the character. How you could see the development of a sad man in to the Joker. Truly a great actor and I believe Heath Ledger would definitely love this portrayal of the Joker.

monroe_madi - October 11, 2019, 3:18 pm

Just saw it the other day! Definitely my favorite movie that came out this year!

spiral - October 12, 2019, 3:28 am

I thought it was a good movie, very strange at time but did enjoy it. Probably would have enjoyed it more if I wasn't high as fuck while watching it but w/e lol

Threat - October 12, 2019, 5:40 am

Yeah it was a good movie, kinda depressing at parts but still good. ?

Cocaine - October 12, 2019, 5:49 am

I'm really excited to go see it. Looks like a really good movie. This is surprising as I don't really like movies anymore.

Clinglass - October 12, 2019, 9:22 am

For me, it was phenomenal from acting to soundtrack.

Hope it gets a ton of Oscars. I can already see Best movie, Best actor & Best soundtrack

1337GAMER - October 12, 2019, 9:31 am

I look forward to seeing this!

Linux X - October 13, 2019, 12:14 am

The movie is not good. This is my opinion. I rate 4/10 only for the hard work of the actor. This is not the real joker.

I agree with you on the acting, it was flawless.

But the soundtrack? What a waste of f*cking time. I've never heard a song overused so much as they did with Sinatra's, Got to the rear end of the film and its still being played liberally. Felt like they were trying to squeeze every last second out of what they paid for the rights.

Spoiler (Click to View) You legit see the exact scenes of the Wayne family being attacked in the alleyway. So exact that they even replicated the ripping of the pearl necklace. I don't see how it can be interpreted as anything but the same timeline.

I'm rather talking about Hildur's score composition.

As a matter a fact, something really interesting was done here by Todd. It is common to make the movie and then compose soundtrack based on it.

This was done the other way around, the soundtrack was composed first... and only after, did they film and edit the footage according to the Hildur's.

I think soundtrack coming before the film/edit, is a very VERY smart idea. Music gives perspective.

(and yes, I do work in the domain.... 13 years experience)

Haven't watched it yet but everyones super positive about it. Can't wait really

[Rn] 7s^2 - October 15, 2019, 11:56 am

I saw it twice in a movie theater and both the time, the audience was applauding in the end.

I agree that it is a masterpiece. I loved it.

Sir - October 17, 2019, 6:59 am

I mean... It was okay lol.

It wasn't anything too crazy imho.

?Satanic - October 19, 2019, 12:59 pm

If you suffer from mental illness the movie can trigger someone into a manic or depressed episode

The reason it as rated R and not PG 13 is because most teenagers arent gonna understand/respect the role mental illness plays in the movie.

In order to REALLLY appreciate the movie you have to understand mental illness and how it effects people because the movie nailed it.

This is why people either LOVEDDDD it or thought it was horrible

It was an alright movie, and I seen it twice, nothing special or spectacular to make it amazing in my opinion. Just good acting that's about it.

Seife?r - October 30, 2019, 5:43 am

Saw it at an early cinema showing, I thought it was alright like 7-8/10, people keep calling it a masterpiece though so it makes me want to watch it again to see if I just missed something xD
