Thread: Wanting to video edit..

Life - October 4, 2019, 4:08 pm

Hey all!

Wanting to start video editing now I have some time on my hands. I have 6 days to just focus on it!

Going to be using iPad Pro 12.9 Inch 2018 + LumaFusion.

All I need is content! Preferably gaming content but I'm happy to try edit a vlog! I figure the best way to learn is just by giving it a go! So my question is!

Would be good if its in 4K :D

Does anyone have any high quality content you want edited? I'm not charging I'm strictly learning! May not get anything back from me but if I think its decent ill send it back! PM me or post if you have anything! THANKS! ?

Try making a youtube video based on gaming and edit that and upload it? That would probably be a great way to get feedback and learn.

Hey man, go out and film stuff on the street with your phone. I assume that if you've got a decent iPad you'll have a decent phone.

Do some people watching :)

Not fond of iPad's software editing. Quite more convenient to work a desktop, with at least one large display, or two displays.

Should be Adobe Premiere Pro either Final Cut Pro, doesn't matter.

StickTalk - October 5, 2019, 2:17 pm

I'll send you a video you can edit for me. I'll upload it and send it to you in a PM.

Life - October 5, 2019, 4:04 pm

Thanks for replying everyone! Mainly asking for other peoples footage because you could tell me something you would like done with it and I cant attempt it. I have no gaming footage of my own lol.. haven't played a game in months.

But like Spaark said, I do have a pretty good phone that records 4K so I could do that too!

Guys this might be so lame but its so cool!!! Literally just learning the software on iPad with random clips I've recorded on my phone just as a test and this is what I came up with in 30 minutes! No idea what I'm doing but it feels good!

To be completely honest, I'm surprised you even managed this with an iPad. I didn't know they were capable of much more than cutting and trimming.

Well that was my first though until I found "LumaFusion" apparently you can do heaps! Keying in green screens is what I did there with transitions.

And every 1 sec of 4K 60FPS 100mbps video it takes 1 second to render so its fast too!

That's pretty impressive I guess. Cant remember what my PC used to render at.

This is actually really nice man. You did well. I'll be sending you a link to my video soon!

There is legitimately an entire section for Video Editing.

But I would rather get a response within the next day or so not a month from now haha. I enjoy interacting with the people in the lounge. Not everyone from this section will even look at the video editing section. That's why I have posted here instead.

That mentality is what kills sections.

It could have also gone in the Gaming Section from the looks of it.

You're already getting good. If you just keep doing what you're doing by learning more, you'll become a pro very quickly.

Thanks heaps! :D did take me an hour to do that but I got it haha

I've been video editing for over 6+ years now probably and I started with movie maker. I managed to make some good edits back then with it and I guess you gotta start somewhere. I'm not saying that an iPhone isn't good enough, but it's not the usual editing software. If you stuck with it, you'll eventually figure out having a software like AE, Premiere or Sony Vegas is much more convenient.

Sadly, the Video-Editing sub-forum isn't that active here. I'll try to reply to almost every post.

I like what you've done bro. Keep it up, really good.

inshot is a nice app to use for video editing on mobile, so I guess also on iPad. I don't know about any mobile ones that support 4k. Maybe Adobe rush. Best video editing is done on laptop tho thanks for the reply. I am using LumaFusion. Seems to have almost everything. Doesn't have tracking yet but they are adding stuff every update.

Oh interesting, haven't heard of it but it looks good. That 33 euros is a steal if you compare it to the adobe prices
