I'm not one to normally brag but as some of you may know I am quite obsessed with watches! I started a thread in April 2018 hoping to one day be able to afford a nice watch, and now I have done it! Anyone Like Watches?

So here it is:

beautiful watch congrats i like the color

QKRLDN - October 8, 2019, 11:42 am

Looks fire, I love blue faced and red faced watches! Have a blue myself (not a rolex).
I recently bought a white gold tennis chain yeah love the blue face on it!

Lavish Living - October 8, 2019, 1:55 pm

I thought I knew how to waste my money... but you topped me kappa Shoulda put that 11k into your retirement fund, would be worth about $500,000 in 40 years. Gg you played yourself

Azlan1 - October 8, 2019, 5:13 pm

Love the watch man! That blue really pops out, always nice seeing people achieve their dreams.

SIM-3257834 - October 8, 2019, 5:16 pm

11k could have gone onto rental property.

No it couldn't.

I need a 25% deposit for a buy to let property.

I'd also need to pay off my current mortgage.

The watch doesn't depreciate either so I can get my money back at any time.

Spaark - October 8, 2019, 11:41 pm

Looks dope man. Very safe choice for a Rolex. That sh*ts timeless.

With an interest rate of around 3.5? Your math is way off.

If I need the money for different projects I can sell it for the same value.

Natas - October 8, 2019, 11:49 pm

Damn bro thats nice af what is the name of that brand ?

Spider - October 8, 2019, 11:50 pm

Very nice I am not sure I could afford one myself.

Natas - October 9, 2019, 1:59 am

Can you guys invest in index funds? S&P 500? That was 10% interest which is the avg over the last 40 years. 11,000 -> 500k

Just picked up my first watch, it's a fucking Versace.
Probably the worst clock on the market but couldn't be bothered, at least it's Versace.

Good job on the Rolex, one day I'll top of with an even more expensive watch, one day....

revv - October 9, 2019, 7:44 am

yikes, 11k? For what? There's nothing valuable in that watch it seems like, what is it made of? No gold or precious metals/diamonds looks like you paid for the name and that's it

It is very easy. Just takes discipline. Anyone who makes 50k+ a year can retire in 10-30 years as a millionaire. If they invest and budget accordingly.

Will take a look, thanks mate ?

(Oct 9, 2019 07:56 AM)revv Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Enlighten me, how is a watch made of (what seems like stainless steel) worth 11k?

The prices are justified by the fact that they are manufactured watches, this means that every single detail, starting from the mechanism (+ of 100 gears), to the case (obtained for each specimen from a single block of steel, without joints), to the crown of twin-lock charging, etc., is produced, worked and finished by hand, totally by Rolex, without the intervention of external suppliers.

All this guarantees exceptional quality and reliability, at the top of the market.

All this has high costs...

We add a highly efficient assistance network, and the status symbol gained in more than 100 years by the Rolex brand, and we will see that the purchase of one of these watches is valid for a lifetime.

It should not be overlooked then that the purchase of a Rolex watch is also an investment, because it is one of the very few brands that used to be sold without problems, at prices close to new.

P.S. I'm not talking for golden Rolex or models with diamonds.

Exactly like I said that he paid for the brand name, there's absolutely no value in that watch except the name... the company is laughing all the way to the bank. Literally a few dollar worth of stainless steel for 11k.

There's a sucker born every minute.

Congratulations on the big brag!

I'm not into submarine watches like the Rolex you have there, but it does look pretty great. If I'd spend 11k at once, I'd buy gold. Love the looks better than a watch, but gold can't tell time.

What other Rolex watches do you have? Or what kind of watches are in your current collection?
