Thread: What Group Is HF Missing

Wheelie - October 21, 2019, 1:28 pm

If you were an owner of an HF group what would you turn the group too?

What Group is HF missing in the community and what would you like to see here?

What would you call it?

I was thinking something involving Social Media as well as E-commerce. What do you think Leave honest feedback below.

MavenGradle - October 21, 2019, 1:30 pm

I have yet to see a group dedicated to programming. Maybe I'm missing something.

Deany - October 21, 2019, 1:31 pm

If I were an owner I'd make an anime group. I'm serious.

Natas - October 21, 2019, 1:31 pm

A dope marketing group.

Sports group.

White hat group.

Thease would be some groups I would be hyped to see.

mrpizzahut - October 21, 2019, 1:36 pm

Legit hacker crew in general is what HF needs. Not advocating illegal activities, but we create something that holds weight.

Lavish Living - October 21, 2019, 1:38 pm

Aficianado tried making an e-commerce group

Famous was a social media group

I think one of MMLF's groups might be an e-commerce specific one. Idr

But yeah, gambling group >>>>

luke - October 21, 2019, 1:43 pm

a fashion/streetwear group. MMLF is making one I believe

Sheep - October 21, 2019, 1:51 pm

I would join a sports or gaming group. I've played sports my whole life and I currently compete in esports. I'm sure many members are like minded.

Zexi - October 21, 2019, 2:20 pm

Either a marketing or a gaming group would be cool, both have huge bases of people interested in it.

Marketing might be a good idea but whoever is making money he is not sharing it with anyone so i wouldn't see what would people post except flex with their marketing group userbars. Gaming on the other hand is huge and could gather the community more but it's kinda broad and idk how can you make people want to be a part of it.

Deal - October 21, 2019, 2:24 pm

We need two groups:

A training group with shredded mofos (me) helping fat kids on HF become shredded. (You)

Or. The HF's first Italian mafia.

Ranks would be like "Made man" "Associate" "Consigliere" "The father"

You would have to be an associate for months being active within the family to become a made man.

Every month would be a group call where matters will be discussed. And there will be an additional sub only for made men. Here there will be money making methods etc etc.

To be honest, If I could afford to own a group I would buy one and I would make it into something that was like 143.

Al the poll options is shit. Gaming has been here numerous times, never became anything good. Anime is obviously shit. There's been so many blackhat/white hat/grey hat groups during the time. Same with marketing groups.

I never understood why someone would buy a group to create the same type of group that has been here so many times in the past without actual success.

Anyway it's your money so it's up to yourself.

I would love to be the owner of a group that discusses everything art wise. I just had to opportunity to join Sui Generis that dicusses it, but I would love to own my own. Discussing everything Art, music, Fashion, etc.

I have 0 clue what I would call it though.

I think it would be cool to have a "hacking" or vulnerability group. A group about everything blackhat/greyhat/whitehat. More of a tutorial group though, not just only people that can do stuff, but people that are willing to learn.

passCODE - October 27, 2019, 12:51 pm

From the first day I joined here I noticed the lack of marketing sections and topics. It's a huge area and later it became more popular than ever because of social media and the fact that everyone wants to be a businessman (online) today and the word marketing is being the number one thing always mentioned when it comes to online businesses. There's a lot to talk about it, different types of marketing, social media, advertising even eCommerce as you mention above. Based on the fact that it is extremely popular, you can't mistake by starting that type of group and I would love to be a member of it.

A lot of people feel this way about OW. I personally love the brand and the concept behind it. The whole reason for the "checkered" or "diagonal" design is to represent construction obviously, that's why there's so many other "industrial" vibes that goes along with Off White. The reason for this is because Virgil looks at his clothing line the same way he looks at life; nothing is ever perfect. That sits very strongly with me as I've always had a similar outlook, that there is truly nothing perfect in this world, and OW clothes resemble that aspect perfectly.

I only own one hoodie by them, the Nike Labs x Off White Mercurial in white. Bought it at $350, it's worth around $600 now to the right buyer online, and around $800+ in a reselling store.

Okay I have a few ideas here:

Bytes Bandits

Byt3s Band1ts

Bytes Battles

Bytes Battlers

Beaming Bytes

Blissful Bytes

Bright Bytes

Brilliant Bytes

Black Bytes

Balanced Bytes

Byte(s) Addicts

OW is considered both a streetwear and designer brand.

I think Abloh is a hack to be honest. Off White being the main reason.

I understand it's meant be "anti fashion" and deconstructed. It's just executed horrifically bad.

Look at deconstructionist work from a designer like Ann Demeulemeester, Rei Kawakubo, Yohji Yamamoto or even Vetements and tell me that Off White compares.

Off White just feels like a brand marketed towards children.

Oh I totally get what you mean especially when comparing to designer brands like that, however Off White did what none of them did; market it to virtually anyone.

How often do you see the mainstream market walking around rocking a Ann Demeulemeester x Y-3 x Vetements fit? You don't. You see them rocking Supreme, Off White, BAPE, Balenciaga, and maybe some Y-3 or other higher designer brand. Reason Virgil did this imo was simply to broaden the designer community, because if you look at Virgil's work before OW it was all designer based. I mean look at him now, he's the lead men's designer for goddamn Louis Vuitton, you don't get that position unless you KNOW what the hell you're doing in the designer/fashion world, which he does.

Yes OW is tacky, overdone, hyped, but at the end of the day OW still has some straight up beautiful designs that I would be happy wearing to a nice dinner/family gathering. It's a nice taste in between the casual and formal look that OW offers. And like I said, I really like the deconstructed look OW offers without actually deconstructing the clothes themselves, only maybe offering an over-sized version in regards to physical alterations.

Also, if you look at the sales totals for Virgil's transparent LV bag designs and his other newer designs since he's taken over, LV did some of its highest recorded sales since the Neverfull release. Virgil's no scam, no hack, no fake. He's the real deal and unfortunately gets targeted like this solely due to the fact that hypebeasts heavily incorporated Off White into the hypebeast and streetwear world, almost making OW more of a streetwear based brand to those who are ignorant to OW and Virgil's history.

Besides, as far as I'm concerned, most of the "hacking tab" is made from copy and past's content from other websites/forums, just in order to earn the award.
