Maybe the victim has a secondary mail address added to the password reset function on Facebook, just to avoid fu*ers like you ;)

If you've tried to reset the password your IP has been sent to the victims mail already too.

I hope you used a VPN when you sent the password reset request. Services like Facebook basically store these IPs and browser data to be ahead of criminals (like you). The victim will probably have added a different email address or received an SMS. Be careful with this.
