Thread: Rate my thread designs

Anima - October 28, 2019, 2:23 pm

I'm pretty new to graphics so been providing free threads to peoples, what do yall think?

I don't think i'm good enough to start selling them yet but i think i'm on the right path? I welcome all constructive feedback to help me improve :)

The second one looks sick, at the first one its a little bit irritating that at the plan on the right is the vector thingy. Tho both sick!

GUnz4Hire - November 4, 2019, 12:34 pm

#1 top part is nice. Below part looks poor (no offense)
the emoticons are just lq/not in shape.

#2 is beautifull

bigdick67 - November 8, 2019, 9:36 am

Looks clean and professional, just like it should. Well done!

VenomGT - November 8, 2019, 10:25 pm

looking clean brother, u re for sure on the right path. keep it up

Here are some comments, hope they help in any way, shape or form!

1st Design: Fonts are great, text effects are a bit iffy which is understandable given you're new to GFX. The drop shadow behind 'By Savitar' could benefit from an increased opacity and/or reduced size. I'd also maybe consider revising the text at the very top; the lil design with text 'Discord jacking guide' should be your point of emphasis and the text above it causes a cluster of information. What if you swapped the positions of them, made the jacking guide part larger, the other text smaller and put it directly below. Last thing, experiment with various strokes on text, shapes and design border. Remember, you want to create a "flow" of information and eye candy from top to bottom, simple lines can make a big difference when it comes to that!

2nd Design: Good work! This one took me by surprise, you're already improving greatly as a designer! Only 2 major things stood out to me; the pricing part ($5 per code) does not fit very well, looks awkward. My suggestion is to get rid of the white shapes, make the color of the text white (match your background) and find a nice, clean bold font. Last thing, the outer-glow on the 2 images at the bottom is a bit rough. Looks good, but could look a lot better. What would probably look cool is if you simply changed the color of it to a very light grey, it will blend nicely with the white background!

Sorry if that was hard to understand, it gets real hard to word my thoughts when it comes to photoshop lol.

Keep the good work up, nothing like some newfound creativity.

Yeah agreed! You don't have to charge a fuggton at the beginning either. Just start off low then.

You've got some real talent bro.

I'm no expert by any means, but maybe check out Fiverr to gauge what other people are charging for similar designs?

You can also check on other forum platforms, but I would start there.

Incomplete but it is good, just work on spacing. Where you get the vector graphics if I may ask ??

Anima - November 15, 2019, 6:36 am

Another thread design to add to the collection

Weebex - November 15, 2019, 2:45 pm

(I don't exactly know what font you used, so in some pictures I chose a font that closely resembles it)

For your Google Home Mini Thread Design, straight off the bat the font you used for the price feels inconsistent with the other fonts you chose here. Your title font gives off a bold and professional feeling to it, whereas the price font is giving off a big and lazy feel (hope this makes sense). Try out fonts that are similar to the font around to keep that consistency. The font I'm using below is Google Sans.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

This might be just me, but it would be nice to see weight differences in your title area. It looks like your title and subtitle are the same font weight and the shipping is a lighter weight. It would look nicer to add some variation like bold for your title, semi-bold for the subtitle, and regular/light for whatever beneath. Similar to this.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

There are also a few alignment issues in your design, mainly in your title and tech specs area. The circles are at different heights and possibly sizes? I could be wrong on the sizes. I don't know if you know this or not, but I'll still mention. Smart Guides can really help you in properly align objects, in this case the circles.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Noticed this as well, small issue that can be easily fixed just by creating it yourself.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

So a few alignment issues here, the spacing between the last item of a section and the next section is off. Here in the first image, I used this space as reference for the other spaces. Notice how the spacing between the two texts are different than the original spacing you had. Small adjustments are needed, but I don't think many would see this small spacing issue. And some more alignment issues with your text in the 4th image.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

Some more font weight variations you can play with here.

A few things I liked and didn't like in your design.

Likes Good font choice for the title

The use of colors from the actual Google Home Minis

The Google assistant logo (though it feels like it's just plopped there with no real purpose)

2-3 fonts

Dislikes Terrible font choice for the price

Spacing and alignment in a few areas

That weird flow that only appears once on the design

Even though you're new to Graphic Design, you're off to a great start! A way better start than how I started. I'll give some feedback on those other designs at another time. Amazing work so far man! Keep it up and I look forward to seeing your progression!

Thanks brother, I really appreciate the amount of detail you put into your feedback, I'll definitely take this on board!

The things like the dots & tech specs I grabbed off the Google site aha (screenshots).

I think for me this was more of an experiment (improving a design I saw) but I should definitely take more care even if it is something that only took half hour.

It would be great to speak to you more! I always welcome any feedback that will help me improve, I hope the more I do things the more I learn.

Feel free to message me any time brother, it would be great to have some feedback on my sales thread

Very clean, especially #2 that one is very nice!

SIM-4440595 - November 16, 2019, 4:26 pm

Very clean, and professional. Legit if I had a product to sell I would contact you. Good work.

norred - November 17, 2019, 8:11 pm

I'm kind of new myself to the scene but I will say that the vector image placed in the center-right side kinda throws the design of #1 off.

#2 I personally see no flaws in it. I love the color scheme you chose.

Overall both look great to be some of your earliest work.

RedJohn77 - November 18, 2019, 2:06 am pretty simple, but clean and suits the industry
