Thread: Do you answer the door to trick or treaters?

Alex Buckland - October 31, 2019, 10:27 am

I'm in a wheelchair right now with 2 broken legs after a car accident so didn't buy anything to give...

Just curious if you guys actually answer the door lol

Have any of you egged any houses on Halloween ? Shit was funny.

Condasoftware - October 31, 2019, 11:39 am

Sure why not sweets cost a few quid.

Pow3r - October 31, 2019, 11:41 am

I answer it until I run out of stuff to give, then I don't. I am going out soon anyway. I have egged houses when I was a kid haha.

de_g3ntl3m4n - October 31, 2019, 12:13 pm

Regulus - October 31, 2019, 12:17 pm

I just say "trick" and if they throw something at my window I run after them and punch their little c.u.n.t faces or throw fireworks at them.

My house has an electric gate, so the peasants can't get their grubby hands on my door.

KrisKrox - October 31, 2019, 1:52 pm

I don't answer the door for anyone. For as people in my neighborhood know, my house is abandoned.

Low profile. I have personal grievances against certain people within my neighborhood so rather than interact I avoid and go about my business.

Your ridiculous request is born from cowardice and idiocy.

You are a scared thing, a timid thing, a weak thing, and I in the glory of my magnanimous English spirit extend a hand to you, but in the ugliness of your hostile weakness, you are even too frightened to accept it or show any gratitude well then, you have consigned yourself to your own damned lot in the words of the wise, you've made your bed, now lie in it.

You should learn to recognise the scent of a superior man.

You're a timid shy boy and not worth the effort which is why you'll wind your days down in isolation. You'd be better dead now than wasting your time with your miserable squalid life devoid of anything but the crudest satisfaction of sloppy foods and nasty wanks.

I also see you have an admiration for our army. Is it a policy of the British government to send the boring, useless, stupid people first? That's a good idea, actually, sign up.

You just got smashed, lad.

A rough looking father, with a bald head, tats, etc, and his Son, hammered on my door, I ignored it, but he caught a glimpse of me through the window.

So his Dad booted my door, and shouted through my letterbox, that I'm a miserable bastard, and if he sees me tomorrow leave my house he's going to break my f*cking neck, for ruining his Son's Halloween...

Normally, i'm not the person that does, but a lot has changed around my house in the last year.

Today, me and my dad did it.

The weather here is pretty bad so we didn't get too many and they stopped coming an hour or two ago.

How can I answer the door for trick or treaters when I'm out at my church having an awesome Young Adult Group party! There's nowhere I'd rather be.
