When I logged into my Facebook from android chrome ,Facebook alert new login from my device with my device name and location

Is there any android browser that doesn't send phone info and location .
I don't want to reveal my phone name

Can you not adjust the privacy settings in your FB settings? Or block location data from being sent from your Android?

Use VPN. It tracks your IP and by that it gets more info. VPN should solve this.

Why would you even use Facebook if you don't want your personal identity online?
