grady - November 10, 2019, 12:04 am

What were the actual odds on it?

Ravioli - November 10, 2019, 12:27 am

I was thinking about betting, but I genuinely hate gambling like that. I don't think I would of been able to predict specifically who was going to win and when.

In the end, no one won.

I saw the first fight for laughs

Trust me, no one won, they looked so so terrible. Flailing their arms around as if they've never been in a boxing match

Veninu - November 10, 2019, 7:45 am

I would've bet like 100-200€ on KSI but I never found a site on where to bet on this match ?

Coming from the $180/hour, clientless software developer.

They both walked away with millions but keep telling yourself no one won.

Trust me, no one won. Unless your dignity is worth a few million.

Honestly lol yea my dignity in terms of a boxing match is 10000000000000000% worth a few millions.

If someone told me to do a boxing match and I'd know I'll lose... idc I'll take the millions and lose my dignity. My family and friends still respect me I don't give a fuck what randoms will say. Omg he is weakkkkk he lost hahahahaha. Yea IDC

I was more or less thinking

"Bwahahaha look at these twats, can't even throw a swing"

Then for the rest of your life, you're not just known as a douchetuber, but a douchetuber who can't even throw a swing right without looking like an uncoordinated drunk.

There are other ways to make millions then to make yourself look beyond stupid...

I could watch it, cringeworthy at best. Sums up the last 5 years IMO. Not for me.

"Two Youtubers fighting vigorously on the ring for more views." I reckon that would be a funny title. Anyway, congratulations to KSI on the win.

I wouldn't call it selling ur dignity going in the ring to pound on someone you can't stand and make bank doing it, hell i'd do it in a heartbeat. No one can shame them for doing that. Do they make cringy content? perhaps, still obviously doing something right.

Pounded on? Were you watching the same thing I did? It was like two school kids who called each other "a stupid head" and then proceeded to flail arms, it was just pathetic

Well, i don't really follow youtube that much, but i've seen plenty of boxing growing up with a family following boxing religiously. And I've seen worse, it's draining going 6 rounds like that with so many people watching, going through so much press. Some solid punches were landed, stance and movement decent same with defense until the later rounds as per usual in fights. KSI was way too eager for a knock out which was why u see him "flail"swing his hands, which isn't a bad tactic if you know how to rotate ur hook and you get a good jaw punch in, didn't work but you see many professional fighters do the exact same thing when going for knockout punches they just don't do it almost every punch xD. Wasn't top notch boxing, but if you were expecting that then you're the idiot.

Do you watch much boxing, or have done much fighting urself.

Did quite a bit of boxing after high school for about 6 years, Never in my life have I seen someone try to knock someone out like that unless they're already half out of it, keep your arms in, jabs and uppercuts is all you should be aiming for, the haymakers that KSI was throwing would be useless to any semi-conscious person as they would see it coming a mile away.

I actually didn't watch too much, just enough to see that it was a massive joke...

6 rounds ain't that long as long as you're conservative, something they weren't aha ileafx - November 11, 2019, 2:11 am imo watching ksi since 2011, being a recurring and long term fan of his. It was pretty fun to watch.

Coming from a younger generation perspective. Who cares how much they make? maybe this is just a taste on how much and what a younger generation of audience can bring. One of the biggest boxing matches without real boxers
