Thread: RESTURANT TREATING MY BROTHER AWFUL - HELP US SHOW THEM WHAT KARMA IS!

SweetX - November 14, 2019, 6:30 am

Not on HF so often anymore becuase of personal things in life but this time I logged again after about 3 years and ask for help! ?

I'm going to try making this as short as possible but to still make you guys understand!

My brother is 15 years old and got his first job, everything started fine the first days. The first day he was told by some other workers that he should not watch out for the chef/owner because he can get VERY tempered and angry quick. My brother didn't really think more of that and continued working and we're doing everything as told. Day after day my brother noticed just more and more that the owner expressed himself very mean towards him, other workers in his age and also the guests sometimes if they didn't want to buy his expensive shit. 30$ for a 1meter buffet is not something here in Sweden that is normal so of course, people are asking and sometimes don't want to buy. This goes beyond my brother and he gets mad at him and the other workers instead and calls him bad, lazy and that he is never going to be something in his life. ?

There is a lot more to this to tell but here is the most of it. PM me if you wanna know more.

I and my friends I have left as many bad reviews as we can (1-star reviews) on his Google Review and he is so tempered about it. If you have a minute over please go give this shithead a one-star review and show him karma exists. Pepi

Show him what we can do boys! ?

Search for "Grillkungen Varalov" on google and there you can post a review.

Greatful for everyhelp guys! <3

Isn't your brother too young to work at 15?

Thought it's only sommar jobb (work on summer) at 15.

Sly Cooper - November 14, 2019, 12:28 pm

Idk man, I get you but this seems pretty childish to me. If he's doing something illegal then do something about that. If he's just being a shithead then get a new job and remember that most of your bosses will be some form of shithead. If you want to make a battle out of every shitty boss, you'll spend a lot of your life battling. Let the market take care of people who can't run their businesses well (although I don't know how the government deals with small businesses where you are from; this is an American perspective)

Rsynced - November 14, 2019, 12:47 pm

Call in and make big orders and never pick them up. Call the health inspector.

I do agree with this though, but if it was extreme I would do my suggestions.

Or better yet, just walk out and quit on a lunch rush. Sounds like a dead end job. Better jobs for young people out there, you don't want to get locked into the restaurant business unless you are working for a nice classy place. It's a living hell!

If you want to harm the business really hard, then you know what you gotta do with the building on night time. Make it Rosengård 2.0

Yeah true I understand what you mean bud, but the way he treated my brother and the things he said and told him made me very upset. I saw him looking more and sadder every day and I didn't know why. He was pushed to that point where he, in the end, couldn't take it anymore and cried out loud.

That's why I didn't want them to go "free" and show him that karma bites him and that he has to clean up the sh*it that he did against my brother. This was not just a normal mad/angry boss, he was harassing and bullying in a lot of ways. ?

Yeah would work, but don't want to really go that huge at this moment because of the thing that he can put all of the actions on my brother and I don't want to risk that. Better just making their reputation really bad. ? ? ?

This seems like something you should rethink. What kind of harm is this going to do to this man's business? Who can be held responsible?

Sometimes a work place isn't a good fit, tell your brother to learn from the experience and look for a different opportunity.

In Sweden before eating a lot of people check the reviews first, if you check the reviews he is answering them and totally going berserk even now. He is saying he is going to report them to the police lmao. The reviews mean a lot in Sweden for the company and bad reviews make them get fewer people and less revenue.

Yeah so true, if you go down there was a woman who said they were too expensive about a year ago and they answered back writing in Swedish that she could eat on the closest supermarket if the food doesn't fit her and being very arrogant in the answer.

I also left a 1 star review, but I see the owner reporting the reviews to google and the owner might know it's your brother.

"Response from the owner2 days ago

Denna recensionen är anmäld till google. Tidigare provanställd 18 åring har nu gett oss 47 st 1:or på två veckor, med hjälp av olika konton, fejkade konton, kompisar mm. Google har tagit bort de flesta recensionerna och förolämpningarna. Vi tar gärna emot positiv och negativ kritik men inte trakasserier. Detta är en kompis till 18-åringen som inte varit i restaurangen. Denna kommer att polisanmälas för förtal och hot."

Yeah, I know. ? But they suspect it is another guy at the moment that is 18, prob someone else that left his job because of his actions against them.

Then what is he going to report to the police? Some google reviews? The Swedish society only deals with the roughest stuff and often shit gets laid down because of not enough proof. There is not even 1% this is going to lead anywhere if he doesn't want to pull out a lot of money and have the time doing research shit, till he ends up here on HF ;) ? ? ???

Tell me how it is illegal to leave bad reviews if you think their service is shit.

Also if no proof comes in after 3 months the case is closed.
