Thread: uploading a public key after shell uploaded

Om Er - November 20, 2019, 3:39 pm

Hi I'm a newbie so be nice

I have successfully uploaded a b374k shell into a VPS and I can upload any shell I want to this server, and I'm able to access the server content, so is there a way to make a public and private key and upload the public key to the server so I can logging using putty or winscp ?

Thanks in advance

Depending on what your web shell is running as (IE it may run as admin / root) you may be able to simply send the commands to create a new user account and then just sign into that.

EDIT: OP will simply insult you if you don't help him, if anyone else is reading this don't even bother to reply to him.

First read my tutorial about backconnecting:

<https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=6008695>

Second read about local root exploits.

Third read about ROOT kits for linux.

Then connect with putty.

Bullshit, I'm not as stupid as you, I can see you meant it. You change your stance the moment you think you will get help, you deserve the negative rep you have. Maybe have a think about how you talk to people next time.

I feel sorry for you my friend, I just insulted you on the last replay, if I wanted your help I would asked, and if you care about something like "negative rep" you need to get your life together and go out a little bit there is much more to live for than a "negative rep" how old are you ? 16 ?

See what I mean? You should spend more time researching your own problems instead of insulting members here who refuse to help you :)

Are you ill or something ? I didn't insult any one unitill they deserve it, I asked for someone welling to help me for free, and a lot of membre with soft spirite got trigred ? and start bitching "I'm not your whore to work for free" Bitch no one forced you to work for free, if you don't want to help for free just move on the next threads...

And sweet hearth I don't need your help because I already figure it out, so you can go and bitch on someone else threads... because you are lick a RAT looking for a beginner to flex on him, like you're Mr know everything.
