Thread: i feel like there are no games for picky gamers like me i had my fair share of gaming in my life. or more than that. due to this, i developed pickyness and trust me 99% of games dont do it for me.

but all other gamers are okay with boring games like Guild Wars 2 (oh my god was it the most boring 3D mmorpg that came to life?) or CS or literally any MOBA/MMORPG/FPS/battle royale theyre all boring aff man and everyone is just copying. all mobas are the same. all mmorpgs are the same. all battle royales are the same. this is beyond sad and as picky gamer i feel like theres not a single title that can entertain me

you probably have just come to a point in your life where there's no place for games, its a good problem to have tbh because unless you're just god at whatever game you're playing and become a streamer or pro player and get paid then games are usually a waste of time anyways

Before you became bored with games, what genres were you into?

What types of games did you grow up playing during your childhood (if any?)

These are the types that tend to be nostalgic and the best for return gamers.

I'm in the same boat as you to be honest, games just don't cut it for me right now. I'm good at the game I play and I can be fairly decent at a game in a short span of time but I'm getting so bored so easily. My advice is just to buy a random game that you wouldn't have considered buying previously and just give a new/different genre a try.
