Thread: Whats the most interesting thing youve read or seen this week?

Linux X - November 22, 2019, 2:08 am

Tell me the most interesting thing that you read.

dragonHarem - November 22, 2019, 2:10 am

I dont read anything interesting but if i gather lot of info then my conclusion and thoughts may be interesting duck - November 22, 2019, 2:33 am

I can't think of anything as of now but this thread is great.

Smexy - November 22, 2019, 2:34 am

That the world produces food for 10billion people.
And there is still 10% of hunger in this world.

dusk?

You know what interesting thing i've heard this week, or I think it's interesting.
Giraffes only sleep about 30 minutes per day.

I read an article about hyper realistic face masks. They did a test an X out of X people couldn't tell the difference. Terrifying.

Also crazy how world hunger could be resolved with a few billion per year and all of the celebrities who have millions and company owners who have more than billions (bill gates having $110 billion net worth) don't do anything about it.

It's also been shown that it has the high possibility of boosting GDP by $270+ billion a year.

Crazy.

If you mean or refer bot to a someone that performs repetitive task every day like being on auto-pilot, maybe to a point.

Well, I've read it many times before but I read it recently again.
