Thread: [\[POLL\] Would my fellow hf members like to see more physical pentesting tutorials?](#)

So while we're no stranger to online technical wizardry. Would seeing more of the IRL shit interest my fellow hackforums members, such as lockpicking, physical penetration testing, things like parkour, and all the good non-technical hacking wizardry that makes you an IRL ninja, and even things like how to bypass restrictions on local machines, such as bootdiscs, unlocking phones, and private investigation strategy for the real world? I don't think this is an apparatus that has had too much discussion, and may make a great addition to the information available to infosec hobbyists. What do you guys think?

The hacking section, maybe under tutorials, or in whatever category they respectively fit in. For example IRL private investigations, and concealment would go in Private Investigations and Anonymity. ?

You don't need votes for this, just do it. It's helpful stuff.

Altight, I'll focus on that then. I just wanted to make sure there was a need for it before doing it so my content wouldnt be overlooked.
